FROM GEN. McCLELLAN'S HEADQUARTERS.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, TURKEY ISLAND, July 2, 1862.

The following is an account of the battles fought in front of Richmond on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, being the fifth, sixth and seventh days of the engagement

On Sunday morning, the corps of Gen. SUMNER and Gen. FRANKLIN were left in the works at Fair Oaks, with instructions to evacuate, and protect the baggage and supply trains on their way to James River.

They had hardly left their position, and were falling back on the railroad and Williamsburgh Turnpike, when the rebels discovered the movement, and immediately started in pursuit, with their whole force.

So rapidly did the rebels approach, that our officers had barely time to place their men in position to receive them before they were upon them.

The enemy advanced to the attack about 2 o'clock, which was promptly met by our men.

The battle lasted until dark, during which the enemy suffered terribly, advancing in solid mass to within a short distance of our artillery.

The effect of our guns upon their ranks was fearful, killing and wounding them by hundreds. At dark the enemy were repulsed, and forced to abandon their position. This battle took place about 1½ miles above Savage Station.

Whilst this battle was in progress other important events were transpiring.

The railroad bridge across the Chickahominy was burned, and a train of twelve cars, under a full head of steam, was run overboard.

All the Commissary and Quartermaster's stores which it was impossible to move, were committed to the flames, together with a large amount of ordnance stores.

The large house at the station and the adjoining grounds, which were filled with our sick and wounded whom it was impossible to get away, were left under the care of our Surgeons, with all the necessaries at hand for their comfort. They numbered about 700, and are now in the enemy's hands.

The troops which had fought the battle of Sunday retreated, under the cover of night, to White Oak Swamp Bridge, a distance of about twelve miles, there to await the approach of the enemy.

The disposition of the troops on Monday, the sixth day, was as follows:

Gen. SMITH'S division, supported by Gen. NAGLEE'S brigade, occupied the right of the bridge, while SUMNER and FRANKLIN'S corps were on the left. HEINTZELMAN'S corps, with Gen. McCALL'S division, was posted out on the New-Market road to meet the enemy, who was approaching from the direction of Richmond. The enemy came up boldly early in the forenoon, having been heavily reinforced by troops that had fought the battle of Friday on the opposite side of the Chickahominy.

At about 2 o'clock it became evident that some portions of our lines must give way, as the enemy were evidently throwing fresh troops into action. Our troops in front of the bridge now fell back to within 3½ miles of Turkey Island bridge, where the fight was shortly after renewed, and continued with the greatest determination on both sides.

The loss on Monday was very heavy on both sides. During the day all the cattle and a greater part of the transportation had safely crossed Turkey Island bridge. Some of the rear wagons were abandoned and fired on this day in order to make room for the artillery.

The fight was renewed early on Tuesday morning by the enemy, who evidently expected to crush our army. It lasted about three hours, resulting in considerable loss to both parties. The enemy then retired, leaving the field to our troops. They again advanced about 3 o'clock P. M., in considerable force, but retired after being shelled by the gunboats and artillery for about two hours, without coming near enough for the use of musketry.

The loss of our army during these seven days' engagements is not known, but twenty thousand is considered as near an estimate as can, at present, be given in killed, wounded and missing. Many of those at present unaccounted for may have straggled away through the country, and may hereafter return.

The loss of the enemy in killed must have been very heavy, far exceeding that of our army.

We have taken about seven hundred prisoners, among whom are three Lieutenant-Colonels and one Major.

The reported capture of Gen. MAGRUDER is probably a mistake.

The loss in field artillery during the seven days amounted to about thirty guns.

Gen. REYNOLDS and Capt. KIMBERLY, of his Staff, were taken prisoners, as was also Col. STOCKTON, of Michigan.

Gen. MEAD, of Pennsylvania, was severely wounded.

Gen. BURNS was wounded in the face. Gens. SUMNER and HEINTZELMAN were both slightly wounded in the left arm, but they did not leave the field.

Gen. McCALL was seen to fall from his horse during the battle of Monday. He was taken prisoner. The extent of his injuries is not known.

Col. GOSLINE, of the Ninety-fifth Pennsylvania Regiment was killed; also, Capt. CAMBLOS, of the Fifth (regular) Cavalry.

Capt. WHITING, of the Fifth Cavalry, was wounded and taken prisoner, and his son, a Lieutenant in the same regiment, lost his left arm.

Col. PRATT, of the Thirty-first New-York Regiment, was wounded in the face.

The army is now encamped on high, rolling ground, on the banks of the James River, fifteen miles from Richmond. The transports are already unloading supplies at the wharves.

The commanding General feels confident of successfully meeting any attack that the enemy may make on his present position. The moving of the army over to James River was not a part of the general plan, as has been stated. The attack of JACKSON'S forces on the right, last Thursday and Friday, made this movement a necessity, in order to save the army from total annihilation, as the reinforcements received by the rebels gave them a force double that of the army of the Potomac.

Among the prisoners taken during the battle were a number belonging to BEAUREGARD'S army.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

FORTRESS MONROE, Wednesday, July 2.

A boat arrived at Fortress Monroe last night which left Hardy's Landing yesterday at 1 o'clock P. M., and up to that hour there had been no fighting for the day in sight or in hearing of the gunboats or the Landing.

FORTRESS MONROE, Thursday, July 3.

At 10 o'clock this morning the Nellie Baker arrived at Fortress Monroe from Harrison's Landing, she having left there at 5 o'clock this morning. She brings down twenty-five rebel prisoners and has only a few wounded on board.

The most terrible fighting took place on Tuesday last, and with the most brilliant success. The rebels were defeated in every action, and the rebel officers taken prisoners admit the loss of at least ten thousand men on that day. Our artillery was most successfully brought to bear nearly all day, while the rebels have done but very little with theirs. Our loss is very small when compared with that of the rebels.

The fighting on both sides was of the most desperate character;—as fast as the rebel forces were cut to pieces other fresh troops were immediately marched forward to fill their places. They appear to disregard the lives of their men, and place and hold them under the hottest fire of our artillery, which was sweeping them down and cutting them to pieces as fast as they arrived.

The enemy have been repulsed and driven back in every fight for the last three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Yesterday the enemy advanced about 8 o'clock in the morning, and opened fire, which was instantly returned, and severe fighting on both sides was kept up for over three hours, when the rebels retreated with considerable loss, and badly cut up by our artillery.

Our troops are in fine spirits, and never were so anxious to fight as they are now. Most of our wounded express a desire to recover speedily that they can again return to their regiments. All seem anxious to be present when Richmond is taken.

Steamers Vanderbilt and Arrowsmith have arrived here, with 700 wounded on the former, and 300 on the latter.

MOVEMENTS OF STONEMAN'S COMMAND.

FORTRESS MONROE, Wednesday, July 2—9 P. M.

Col. C. ROSS SMITH, who is connected with the Reserve Cavalry, informs me that their force, numbering over 1,000, have all arrived here this evening. This command, with the Flying Artillery, and about 1,500 infantry, were placed under command of Gen. STONEMAN, to attend to the removal of Government property at White House. He saw it all safely removed and the building destroyed, and on Saturday evening they left the White House after shipping all the goods and their infantry, 1,500—and retreated to Williamsburgh, arriving there early on Sunday morning. From thence they went to Yorktown, where they shipped their artillery. Their men are all in good health and spirits, and have lost only two of their number, who were taken while on picket duty. They represent the expedition as admirably managed by Gen. STONEMAN. The cavalry consists of the Sixth United States, two squadrons of the Fifth United States, two squadrons of the old Dragoons, or First Cavalry, and two squadrons of the Sixth Pennsylvania Lancers. The cavalry, infantry and artillery in all number about 3,000, and many of them have been erroneously reported captured. It was believed to be so in the main army.

LATEST REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Friday, July 4.

The latest advices received at the War Department from Gen. McCLELLAN'S army, are dated 9 o'clock this morning, up to which time there had been no fighting since Tuesday.

Gen. DIX reports the arrival to-day at Fortress Monroe of 553 rebel prisoners, being a part of those taken during the late battles. Among them are several Colonels and Majors.

Gen. DIX has ordered away all civilians from Fortress Monroe, and no persons will be permitted to pass to that point or the Army of the Potomac, except those connected with the military or naval service of the United States.

Advices received at the War Department, show that there was no fighting in the Peninsula on Wednesday or Thursday, up to 5½ P. M.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 5.

Dispatches have been received from Gen. McCLELLAN dated as late as 1 o'clock P. M., Friday, July 4.

The following is their substance, omitting military details and operations not proper for present publication. There had been no fighting since Tuesday night, when the enemy were repulsed with great slaughter.

The army moved to the position now occupied because it affords greatly superior advantages for the coöperation of the gunboats, of which seventeen are now in the river protecting the flanks of our army.

Statements of the casualties in the severe battles of eight days cannot yet be furnished.

Our forces were not beaten in any conflict, nor could they be driven from the field by the uttermost efforts of the enemy.

No guns have been lost since the engagement on Friday, June 27, when Gen. McCALL'S Division was, at the onset, overwhelmed, and twenty-five pieces fell into the hands of the enemy.

The sick and wounded are being sent to the hospitals.

At 1 o'clock yesterday (the 4th) the army was drawn up in its positions for review; the bands were playing, national salutes being fired, and things looking bright.

The steamer Elm City has about 300 wounded.

The steamer John Brooks has arrived from Harrison's Landing, with 400 wounded on board. Their wounds were dressed to-day, and she has left for Annapolis. Many of them are officers.

The Vanderbilt and Arrowsmith will go to New-York.

REBEL REPORTS OF MONDAY AND TUESDAY,

A DEFEAT ACKNOWLEDGED.

WASHINGTON, Friday, July 4.

The Richmond Examiner, of July 2, gives the following, relating to the battle on Monday. It says:

On Sunday morning, Generals HILL and LONGSTREET, with their divisions, crossed the Chickahominy, and late Monday afternoon, attacked the enemy about five miles northeast of Darleytown, on the Newmarket road. The conflict was terrible, and by half-past eight P. M., the enemy had been driven back a mile and a half. At half-past nine, being heavily reinforced, the enemy made another stand. The loss here on our (the rebels) side was terrible. The situation being evidently hopeless against such overwhelming forces, Gen. HILL slowly retired. At this moment, seeing their adversary retire, the most vociferous cheers arose along the whole Yankee line. The fight ended there for the night.

The Examiner says it thinks the division which went into the fight of Friday, 14,000 strong, could only number 600 men for duty on Tuesday, and that the loss of life exceeds that of any battle or series of battles yet fought.

About 8 A. M., of Tuesday, the Examiner says JACKSON'S and HUGER'S Divisions attacked McCLELLAN'S left flank on the west side of the Chickahominy, seventeen miles from Richmond. Later in the day MAGRUDER fell upon his right flank. Fighting was going on up to 9 o'clock Tuesday night. Heavy firing from the gunboats on James River was heard Tuesday morning.

A number of Federal transports are in the river with reinforcements, supplied from BURNSIDE, but they have not yet landed.

The above extracts from the Examiner relate to Tuesday's battle, in which Gen. McCLELLAN'S dispatch of yesterday said the enemy were badly beaten.

VIEWS OF AN OFFICER ENGAGED.

DISPATCH FROM LIEUT.-COL. SHALER.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

We are in receipt of the following from Lieut.-SHALER, under date of 3d inst., which he requests us to send to you, as well as to Mrs. SHALER.

DOUGLASS & SHERWOOD,
Nos. 51 and 53 White-street.

Please notify Mrs. SHALER that our regiment has arrived at the new position on James River, without loss. The retreat of our army was a great success. The rebels pursued, and their slaughter was immense.

(Signed,) ALEXANDER SHALER,
Lieut.-Col. Com'dg. First U. S. Chasseurs.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

Celebration of the Day in New-York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark, Bridgeport and Elsewhere.

Oration at the Cooper Institute and at Tammany Hall.

Doings at the Charitable Institutions.

Military Parade---Fireworks---Times Pyrotechnics---Accidents---Incidents, &c.

The Eighty-sixth Anniversary of our National Independence was celebrated in this City and vicinity on Friday, in the usual manner, and with more than the usual significance. The military display was, of course less ample than in former years, but the people were satisfied to let that portion of the programme come off in presence of the enemies of the country. The other demonstrations were in no way inferior to those of past years, but were entered into with a patriotic spirit and a meaning such as has not been felt since the revolution. Below will be found a full account of the doings of the day in this City, in Brooklyn, in Newark, in Bridgeport, Conn., and other places.

THE MILITARY DISPLAY.

The sufficient muster of militia regiments were on hand to make quite a creditable, if not imposing, military display; and when it was reflected that the comparative paucity of numbers which paraded was caused by the rush of our best drilled and favorite corps—such as the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Second, Eleventh, Seventy-first, Seventy-ninth, Sixty-ninth, Twenty-second, Thirty-seventh and Fifty-fifth—to defend the honor of their flag and the Union in actual or prospective conflict with the rebels, a feeling of pride rather than regret filled every breast—pride at the knowledge that New-York could rely on some of the best and bravest of her sons in the hour of trial and danger to the country.

Two of the four brigades of the First Division were more or less represented. Of the First Brigade, (Col. POSTLEY, Third Hussars, commanding,) there were the First and Third Regiments of Cavalry; and of the Second Brigade, (Gen. CHARLES YATES, commanding,) the Fourth Regiment of Artillery and the Fifth and Sixth Regiments of Infantry; the Third and Fourth Brigades had no representation, being all at the seat of war. Maj.-Gen. SANDFORD was the officer of the day, and conducted the review with his usual tact and ability.

The procession moved down Broadway, to the City Hall Park, shortly after 9 o'clock, and, after due process of waiting, received inspection from their military chiefs and members of the Common Council They have not had so pleasant and cool a march on any 4th of July for several years. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the procession was the companies of juvenile soldiers that took part in it. There were the Cuban Cadets, from New Hamburgh, showing considerable proficiency in the mysteries of close order and correct alignment; and the McClellan Greys, a body of youngsters, uniformed like the Seventh Regiment, when in fatigue costume, and doing no disgrace to the resemblance in their precision of drill and locomotion. The reserve of the Fifty-fifth (the French regiment,) were also on hand, and the rear was brought up by a remnant of the Continentals, in their quaint habiliments of revolutionary memory.

These military men, useful as well as ornamental in their capacity of Home Guards, have been bereft of much of their ancient glory, by the presence of earnest war in all its stern and sanguinary reality; but who knows how soon their time, too, may come? The Eighth, and Seventy-first, and Sixty-ninth, who were faithful among the faithless at Bull Run; the Fifty-fifth, who fought against such odds at Seven Pines; the Second and Twelfth, who received the baptism of fire in the fatal battle of Gaines' Hill; and the Seventy-ninth, who proved their desperate valor on the bloody earthworks at James Island, were once holiday soldiers.

THE STARS AND STRIPES.

"Old Glory" floated from every place in the City where a flag-pole could be hoisted or hung out. The City Hall was handsomely decorated by the keeper of that municipal sanctuary; the churches, the hotels, and every kind of public building flaunted the National banner to the breeze in unprecedented profusion. The ships in the harbor, American and Foreign, were rigged from stem to stern, and from deck to truck, in all their gayest colors—the Cunard steamers, as usual, doing special honor to the flag under which they may be almost said to partly sail; and from immense numbers of private houses the Stars and Stripes, of all sizes and qualities, were liberally displayed. Excepting during the week or two after the attack on Sumter, there has not been so extravagant a show of patriotic bunting within the memory of man.

THE COOPER INSTITUTE CELEBRATION.

MAYOR OPDYKE PRESIDES—AN ANTI-SLAVERY PRAYER—UNION SONGS—MR. DUGANNE'S POEM—HON. HIRAM WALBRIDGE'S ORATION.

A large audience collected at the Cooper Institute Friday morning, to enjoy the mental treat afforded by the Common Council Committee. The stage was occupied by distinguished guests, who were surrounded with the National, State and Municipal colors, and plaster busts of the fathers of our country. A band of music was to have been present early, but delayed the exercises by being half an hour late.

MAYOR OPDYKE PRESIDED,

and in addressing the audience said that the Eightieth Anniversary of our Independence came not to us with its wonted prosperity and happiness, but clouded in gloom and robed in mourning. An unprovoked rebellion has drenched our country in blood, and struck at the very vitals of civil liberty itself, in its effort to set aside and overthrow the legally expressed will of the majority for that of the minority. The very foundation principle of our Government is the principle that the majority shall rule. But should the rebellion succeed? The resources of the loyal States and the manhood of their citizens would pronounce an emphatic "No." [Applause.] The loyal hearts, embracing a vast majority of the population in their reverence for our Union and Constitution, will unite in pronouncing an emphatic "No." The loyal people of this country have resolved that, come what may, the nation—if it may be so termed—in arms against us shall be overthrown, and the great principle enunciated in the "Declaration of Independence" be triumphant. [Applause.] Under these circumstances, it would be well for us to lay aside much of our wonted National jubilance, and on this occasion let our minds revert to sober reflection. Let us review our past history, and let us ask ourselves earnestly whether we have been true to the great principle enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, and let us resolve, if we have not, to amend in the future. [Applause.] In conclusion, the Mayor said that these lessons and the conflicting emotions suggested by them would no doubt be faithfully depicted by the able and efficient orator who was to follow. [Applause.]

After a long, patriotic and Anti-Slavery prayer by Rev. WM. H. BOOLE, brother of Alderman BOOLE, two national songs by the Union Glee Club, and the reading of the Declaration by Mr. MOORE, Secretary of the Historical Society—

THE POET OF THE DAY,

Hon. A. J. H. DUGANNE, was introduced, and, although somewhat hoarse, delivered his rythmetical effusion in excellent style. The production was full of wit, wisdom and war, and was well received. We extract a few specimen bricks:

Old MANHATTAN! Brave Manhattan!
Many a deed thy minstrels chant—
Done by all thy sturdy burghers,
Since the times of STUYVESANT!
In the grand old days of "Liberty Boys,"
The days of "Golden Hill!"
God be thanked! the pulse of Freedom
Throbs through Old Manhattan still!

* * * * * *

Dumb be he whose lips belie them—
Freedom's first Prætorian Guard;
Theirs to strike Manhattan's key-note,
When the Harp of Stars lay jarred;
Would ye hear their latest drum-beat?
Would ye track their latest tread?
Go where loyal graves lie foremost—
There the "SEVENTH" claims her dead!

Still, where'er the brave are summoned,
There Manhattan's heroes march;
Freedom weaves their laurel chaplets,
Union bullds their triumph arch;
Here they clustered—here they mustered,
Hurrving forth to Danger's van;
Merchant, sailor, student, toiler—
All who bore the stamp of man.

Banners streaming—bayonets gleaming—
Hearts upheld by loyal faith;
Here the stalwart SIXTH advances,
There, behold the veteran EIGHTH:
Marching onward—marching vanward—
Southward, like a storm they burst.
Here the martial TWELFTH is charging,
Yonder wheels the SEVENTY-FIRST.

Ireland's shamrock—Scotland's blue bell,
Bloom for us with crimson flowers;
And o'er all the roar of battle
Gallia's eagle screams with ours!
Roman "Viva!" German "Forwarts!"
Mingle with our own huzzas!
And the Hungarian answers, "Eljen!"—
"Eljen! for the Flag of Stars!"

The great event of the morning was, of course, the

ORATION BY HON. HIRAM WALBRIDGE,

which was delivered with all the unction and declamatory excellence peculiar to our Metropolitan Demosthenes. The historical and statistical information embodied in so brief a space, was truly astounding. We have only room for the concluding portions, as follows:

"WHAT! FROM THIS SUBLIME COMMENCEMENT OF OUR CAREER, HAS BEEN OUR PROGRESS?

We have grown, in territorial extent, from 800,000 square miles to 3,250,000; from a population of 3,900,000, to 33,000,000; from 13 sovereign States, to 34, with a promise to enter the next century with 50,000,000, with an assessed value of property rising, since 1790, from four hundred and eighty millions of dollars, to the immense aggregate of sixteen thousand millions, yielding an annual profit to the people of between five and six hundred millions of dollars, and with a commercial marine rapidly verging toward six millions of tonnage. Nearly fifty thousand ships belonging to the Republic are scattered either over the ocean, traversing our great inland seas, or are penetrating the great streams that flow within our limits. Fifty thousand miles of railroad are projected, and thirty thousand completed, at a cost of over eleven hundred millions of dollars. Forty thousand miles of telegraphic line have been established, at a cost of five millions of dollars. From 75 post-offices in 1790, we have increased to 30,000 in 1860; from 1,875 miles of post routes in 1790, to 275,000 in 1860; from 1,500 miles of sea coast in 1790, to 3,100 miles in 1860. It remained for DE WITT CLINTON, of New-York, to have realized the plan of connecting the waters of the Hudson with Lake Erie, which was completed in 1825, a distance of over 360 miles, at a first cost of nine millions of dollars, since enlarged at an outlay of nearly twice its original construction. The commerce of the Lakes, in 1859, employed twelve hundred sailing and steam vessels, of 328,000 tonnage, valued at nine millions seven hundred and seventy thousand dollars. Prior to the application of steam as a motive power, and in the earlier periods of the Republic, travel from New-Orleans to St. Louis, a distance of 1,300 miles, required four months; now, the distance is overcome, even by water, in three days. The steam tonnage in Western waters, from 76,000 tons in 1842, increased to 250,000 in 1860. The railway, taking up the work of facilities for interior communication, intersects the Union with two hundred and sixty roads, having an annual income of one hundred and twelve millions of dollars. The New-York lines alone, carrying annually thirty-five millions of passengers, and the aggregate extent of the whole system of the Union being four times the extent of that over Great Britain, and more than half the aggregate length of all the railroads in the world. Recurring to the contrast of what as a nation, our condition was at the foundation of the Constitutional Government, when compared with the results under its benign influences. we find that, in the year 1791, our country exported 2,065,000 bushels of grain; in 1855, 1,000,000,000 of bushels, worth $400,000,000. The wheat crop alone of 1860 was 230,000,000 bushels, furnishing, with the surplus of the previous year, 75,000,000 for exportation. Chicago, in 1829, was not even in existence. A century previous to that date, CHARLEVOIX, the Jesuit explorer, designated its locality as a point destined to be of the highest commercial importance in the future. As a grain depot, it is now the first in the world; its warehouses capable of storing nearly 8,000,000 of bushels; its ability to ship in ten hours one million and a-half of bushels. In 1860, its grain shipments were between thirty-five and forty millions of bushels. St. Louis, Cincinnati, Toledo, Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo and Rochester vie with the Illinois commercial capital in this vast domestic and extensive grain trade. The agricultural products of the Union, for 1860, have been estimated at $116,000,000, and the fertile fields within the Union are capable of producing a hundred times that value. The increase in the population of the Union has been, since 1790,

FOUR TIMES GREATER THAN RUSSIA;
SIX TIMES GREATER THAN GREAT BRITAIN;
NINE TIMES GREATER THAN AUSTRIA; AND
TEN TIMES GREATER THAN FRANCE. [Applause.]

The farms and plantations have reached, from the sparse settlements of 1790, in the year 1860, to 2,150,000 farms and plantations. The dwellings, from 250,000 in 1790, worth $130,000,000, to 4,340,000 houses, valued at $4,500,000,000, the increase of population demanding yearly the erection of 130,000 new houses—while 50,000 churches, erected to the worship of the Most High, attest the wide-spread religious feeling of the American family. The average of our domestic exports to foreign countries, from 1790 to 1794, was $22,000,000. In the year 1860, our export were $400,000,000. The value of our manufactures in 1790, inconsiderable for estimate, were, in 1820, $72,000,000; in 1855, $1,055,000,000; in 1860, $2,000,000,000; whilst the land value in thirty-four States equals $9,317,000,000. The navigation laws, taking their date from the protectorate of England, restricted the importation into that island of imports from Asia, Africa or America, except by British vessels. The retaliatory laws of our constitutional Government forced a treaty of equal rights in this respect, still further liberalized by extending the privilege to American vessels as carriers to British Colonies, thus dissolving the exclusive system of Great Britain. The fruits and wines of the Mediterranean, valued annually at $7,500,000, employing over 600 vessels, have now a competitor in the large supply from California, on the Pacific, which furnished in 1860 a grape crop valued at $8,000,000. The wine capabilities of three counties alone in this State, when fully developed, it is estimated, will be over 100,000,000 of gallons per annum. In 1791, our cotton export to Great Britain was 189,316 pounds; in 1860, eleven hundred millions, whilst 300,000 citizens who went to the Pacific twelve years ago, have sent back $600,000,000 in the precious metal. To these results may be added the aggregate total of imports and exports respectively, for the seventy years that succeeded the adoption of the Constitution, at $8,000,000,000 to $8,500,000,000, which represents the industry of the country. Such is but an imperfect outline of the growth and progress of the American people under their Constitutional Government, as founded in 1789. Spreading from the Atlantic border east to the Pacific, our population first reaches the central region between the two great oceans, the immense valley, starting from the highest latitude within our limits down to the Gulf of Mexico, divided by the mighty Mississippi, which waters a region of a million and a quarter square miles, or seven hundred and twenty millions of acres, and with its affluents, coming even from the Rocky Mountains, forms a continuous line of more than ten thousand miles of navigation. This, the great central region, possessing capacity for the production of all the most valuble staples and fruits of the temperate region, and, with its increasing population, destined to hold a controlling position in the domestic trade of the country and its foreign commerce not equaled in extent by any geographical division on the face of the globe. [Applause.] The great advance in our new Republic over kindred institutions in other times is the thorough recognition of the representative principle, in its expanding capacity, and its ability to comprehend the immense territories that are to be brought within its mild sway on this continent, leaving to State jurisdiction matters of local concern, uniting for external and common objects, under one great and powerful General Government, with limited, well-defined powers, and constituting a complete representation of the whole American family. [Applause.] That representative Constitutional Government is the strongest human combination to resist foreign aggression, known to civilized states, has been fully demonstrated in the war of the Revolution, and in our second contest with Great Britain. What the capacity of this form of government is, to resist and overcome a wicked combination of a number of its own rebellious States, striving to crucify the generous mother that gave them birth, is now to be definitely established. [Applause.] Without any pretext of complaint which had not its peaceful and constitutional remedy, a mighty rebellion shakes the earth beneath our feet. Loyal and true men, then, be not dismayed. There are no fears for the ultimate result. There is a principle of eternal justice in the administration of human affairs, as in the celestial empire of God. A million of armed men will soon be in the field—fully equipped with all the paraphernalia of modern warfare. The constitutional men of this Government mean to perpetuate and preserve it. They are willing to invest the constitutional authorities with the men and the means to accomplish this object. They are willing, if needs be, to baptize every inch of American soil in their own blood before it shall be torn from beneath the jurisdiction of the Constitution. Their lives, their money, their hopes, their destiny, their all, is at the service of the Government in upholding the Constitution and the Union. They, however, feel they have a right to know every incident that marks the varying fortunes of the struggle—for it is their own chosen sons who are falling in defence of public liberty. They also earnestly desire, if any foreign intervention is meditated, it may be met with firmness, and without complaint. [Applause.] Every age and each community must contribute its just proportion of sacrifice, of toil, of suffering, and of blood, if necessary, in upholding and preserving the great principles of law, of order, of justice, and of Christianity, on which rests the mighty structure of free government and religious toleration., [Applause.] With a perfect knowledge of the responsibility bending over her, inspired by the past, thoroughly impressed with the great events of the present, and profoundly hopeful of the future, this great commercial Metropolis, representing a million of men, and the commercial energy of the Western Hemisphere, through her regularly-constituted municipal authorities, here, in august presence of the people, this day makes known to the whole civilized world her continued and unfaltering devotion to constitutional, representative government, and her thorough determination to share whatever fate Providence has in store for those who, forgetting all sordid and personal considerations, planting themselves on the rock of the Constitution, never mean to abandon the Government, until, after quelling treason at home, they will, as in times past, again present themselves as a great nation, capable of commanding and enforcing respect, wherever language is spoken, among all the tribes and races of men in every quarter of the habitable globe. [Applause.]

The exercises were further continued with music by the band, singing by the Glee Club and the Benediction. The success of the whole is due in a great measure to the efficiency of the following Committee of Arrangements:

THE TAMMANY SOCIETY CELEBRATION.

ORATION BY JUDGE DALY—POEM BY HENRY MORFORD—BANQUET, SPEECHES, SENTIMENTS AND SONGS.

The Society of Tammany, or "Columbian order," celebrated the day in accordance with the ancient custom and with the undiminished zeal and patriotic fervor of former years. Early in the day the sachems, warriors and chiefs, began to gather around the old wigwam, and by 12 o'clock, the time fixed for throwing open the doors of the council chamber, a sufficient number had collected to occupy all the seats and fill the available standing places in the large hall. The chamber was appropriately decked for the occasion, with the flags of all nations, and the portraits and busts of departed statesmen, both Democratic and Whig, adorned its walls. The Sicilian Band discoursed inspiring music from the balcony and thus whiled away the time until 1 o'clock, the hour for commencing the ceremonies, when Grand Sachem NELSON J. WATERBURY ascended the platform, followed by other Sachems and warriors, among whom we noticed the old war-horse, Supervisor PURDY; Judge DALY, the orator of the day; AUGUSTE BELMONT, ANDREW J. GREENE, Judge HILTON, RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, Alderman BOOLE, and others, besides many who are not known as thorough-bred warriors, such as JAS. BROOKS, and Her Majesty's late consul, EDWIN JAMES, Esq. Judge MCCUNN, though one of the Committee of Arrangements, and Vice-President of the Order, did not take a seat upon the stand, but occupied a bench in the back part of the audience, where he remained throughout the entire ceremonies, immersed in VICTOR HUGO'S fascinating novel, Les Misérables.

After an overture by the band, Grand Sachem WATERBURY made an opening address, in which he referred to the many National Anniversaries that had been celebrated by the Order in the old Wigwam, and said that the Tammany Society reiterated to-day, as it had ofttimes done before, its devotion to the Constitution of our country, and to the principles of civil liberty. The liberty-tree planted by old Tammany in the Revolution, had grown and spread itself until all nations and tribes could now take shelter beneath its branches. And there never had been a time when it was more incumbent upon her to celebrate this natal day of liberty, than the present. We were now living in a time when armed rebellion was engaged in an attempt to overthrow our free Government. This was the second celebration since this sad war commenced. A year ago to-day there was no voice in the land pretending to be loyal, that did not profess to sustain the Government in maintaining the Constitution of the country. Now, however, there were men, even in the Halls of Congress, who were advocating doctrines and measures which proved them to be as dangerous enemies to the Constitution as the rebels themselves. Through their evil machinations the gallant young General who commands our army, was compelled to fight three times his number of soldiers. [Applause.] This was the work of a man pretending to be a Democrat, whom President LINCOLN put in the position of Secretary of War. He had proved a renegade to his party, and had made himself a tool of the Abolitionists, whose damnable schemes he was now trying to carry out. [Applause.] In view of these melancholy facts, it was more than ever incumbent upon the Democracy to rally to the support of the Government, and to the assistance of the gallant MCCLELLAN. [Applause.] It was due, in justice to the President, to say that he had on several occasions done well; it would be gratifying if they could say he had done well on all occasions. He had done well in recalling FREMONT, and in rebuking HUNTER, and if he would now put the foot of power upon the Abolitionists, he would be entitled to still further praise. The Grand Sachem closed by expressing his hope and belief of a final restoration of the Union, which was received with three cheers.

Prof. COLBURN then sang, with much éclat, the National Hymn, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," assisted by a chorus of twenty-four boys. The reading of the Declaration by GEO. W. MCLEAN, followed, after which Mr. HOSEA B. PERKINS recited an original ode to WASHINGTON, which was well received. Miss ANN MAHON sang a song entitled, "A Soldier Is My Beau," composed by her father, which was encored.

An original poem entitled "Tammany and the Union," was then read by the author, HENRY MORFORD, Esq., and received frequent applause. It was full of points and timely hits, and if it had been only half as long, it would have been doubly acceptable. Another song, composed by Grand Sachem WATERBURY, was sung by Prof. COLBURN and pupils, after which the Chairman introduced Judge DALY, the orator of the day.

The Judge's oration was in great measure historical, and consequently not very novel, but was nevertheless interesting and commendably brief. It was now just three hundred years ago, he said, and at this very season of the year, that the first settlement was made in the territory now comprising the United States. This settlement was made by the Huguenots, at Port Royal, when they built a fort and raised a monumental stone, and named the place Carolina. The first two centuries of this settlement, as of others on the Atlantic coast, was a history of colonial vassalage, when the people were controlled by European ideas and customs. A quarter of a century more was spent in preparing for and gaining our independence, and establishing our constitutional Government. We had been long and gradually preparing ourselves for free Government, and naturally adopted free institutions, not as the consequenpe of any new political theories promulgated by writers, but in accordance with the idea of MONTESQUE, that a nation necessarily adopts that form of government for which their previous training has fitted them. Since the adoption of our Constitution we had presented a spectacle of aggregate growth never before witnessed among nations. And now, on the third centenniary anniversary of our existence as a people, and the eighty-sixth anniversary of our independence, we behold a disturbance of such magnitude as to indicate deep-seated causes demanding our serious attention.

The speaker then proceeded to show the difference in the training of the people of the Northern and Southern States, arising from their different social institutions, and quoted from a letter written by JOHN ADAMS during the Revolution, in which he says: "All our misfortunes come from a single source—the reluctance of the Southern people to a Republican Government." He alluded to the aristocratic pretensions of the people of South Carolina and Eastern Virginia, and their claims to superior blood and a better descent. It was of little consequence, he said, in such a struggle as we are now engaged, from whom the men of either side sprang, or what the character of their blood; but since these people lay such stress on the point, it was worth while to investigate the facts. The Judge then proceeded to show by authentic and indubitable historical evidence that South Carolina was originally settled by a set of dissolute men who lived by robbing and plundering their neighbors, the Spanish settlers of Florida, and that the City of Charleston was the headquarters of the pirates. As for the people of Eastern Virginia, he quoted from a letter of JOHN SMITH, of Pocahontas memory, in which he speaks of the settlers then as being a miserable rabble composed of "poor gentlemen, libertines, rakes and footmen, more fitted to ruin a Commonwealth than to build up or support one." To this colony were subsequently added the escaped convicts from England.

Reverting to the present troubles between the North and South, he said that the spirit of a free Government, in the language of BUSH, was "compromise." Unfortunately we lived in a time when "compromise was scouted by superficial journalists, New-England orators and fanatical parsons. A large number of the people of New-England still retain the spirit of their ancestors who burnt witches. They are bound to have everybody believe and think as they do. The people of the South, particularly the descendants of the Huguenots, were possessed of the same intolerant spirit. With them no opinion upon Slavery could be tolerated but their own. A conflict between two such uncompromising peoples was naturally to be expected, and at last it has come. The Democratic Party had hitherto stood as a bulwark between the two opposing forces, but at the last election it became divided, and this conflict was the result. When the Democracy found the war must come they took the only part they could take, and that was in sustaining the Constitution and laws. But now, after a year's war and an expenditure of money equal to one-fourth the debt of Great Britain, we had not yet reached the heart of the rebellion. We had a great task yet on our hands, and one that would require sacrifices not yet conceived of. But the only thing to be done now was to prosecute the war, for all offers of compromise would be scouted. Therefore the call of the President for 300,000 more men was wise, both for the purpose of preventing foreign intervention and to suppress the rebellion. The speaker strongly censured the men in and out of Congress who in the present crisis are engaged in urging confiscation and emancipation and tariff measures, instead of directing their energies to a suppression of the rebellion. The great fault was, the standard of our public men was too low, and he earnestly appealed to the Democracy to remedy the evil and elect better men to represent them in the National councils. He closed with the sentiment, "Union now and forever, one and inseparable."

After the Judge took his seat and a song had been sung, Hon. HIRAM WALBRIDGE, who delivered the oration at Cooper Institute, and who had entered the room while Judge DALY was speaking, arose and presented the following resolutions, which he read to the audience, and which were received with thunders of applause:

Whereas, The United States are engaged in suppressing a wicked and infamous rebellion against the integrity of the Constitution and the stability of the Union; and whereas, continued intimations reach us of foreign intervention, the Democracy of the City and County of New-York, while commemorating this anniversary of the birth of our National existence, unanimously declare

First: That it has ever been the policy of the people and Government of the United States to refrain from any interference in the internal conflicts of foreign Powers; that this policy, early inaugurated by WASHINGTON, conceived in wisdom, and steadily maintained by patriotism and sound policy, has secured the assent and become the doctrine of the whole American people.

Second—That if in conflict with this wide and beneficent policy, any intervention in the domestic troubles of the United States be meditated by any of the European Powers, they must count the cost of war with a spirited and independent people, with a million of men already called to the field, and with an interest in the soil, and justly recognizing that the cause of republican representative Government, as developed and illustrated in our institutions, has been confided, in part, to their sacred keeping.

Third—That the announcement of this intervention, in an authoritative form, will be no less than to sow the Northern section of this hemisphere with the fabled dragon's teeth, and, in due time, will bring forth its crop of armed men.

Mr. WALBRIDGE spoke a few words in support of the resolutions, and was cheered to the echo. He alluded to his remark in Tammany Hall, a year ago to-day, in which he stated that the Government ought immediately to call out 600,000 men. Already had European Governments made an attempt to force their institutions on this continent, in opposition to the doctrine we had always maintained. We had scrupulously kept aloof from all the conflicts in Europe, and attended to our own business. England and France must do the same now, or prepare themselves for a contest with a million of men in arms. [Tremendous applause.]

From the manner in which the resolutions were received, and the unanimity and emphasis with which they were adopted, could be discovered the determination of the Democracy to allow no interference on the part of England or France, and the overwhelming popularity of a war which should be brought on by such an attempt.

"The Star Spangled Banner," sung by the whole audience, concluded the exercises in the hall, after which the folding doors were thrown open, and all were permitted to partake freely of the "waters of the great spring." As usual, the waters had a "stick" in them, but they appeared to be none the less acceptable on that account. Want of space forbids a detailed report of the sayings and doings, the sentiments and speeches at the festive board. Suffice it to say that Grand Sachem WATERBURY presided over the fountain, and saw that every warrior partook of its cooling draught. He announced the sentiments, and called forth the speakers. Among them were AUGUST BELMONT, who has just returned from Europe, where he has been absent ten months with his sick family, and who renewed the expressions of his love for his adopted country, in whose triumphs while absent he had rejoiced, and in whose future union, integrity and power he had the most undoubted faith. After him, Judge HILTON, HENRY L. CLINTON, HORACE WALBRIDGE and others responded to sentiments, and the party dispersed with the general conviction that Old Tammany had enjoyed one of the best celebrations of the Fourth since her existence as a Society.

THE CHILDREN OF CHARITY.

The young Randall's Islanders were duly impressed with the importance of the occasion by a cheering visit from the Commissioners, a speech by Mr. DRAPER, a rousing feast at noon, and a brilliant display of fireworks at night. Older characters were entertained as well, and the neat little steamer Bellevue made a pleasure trip to Fort Schuyler, bearing upon her gaily-trimmed decks a group of officials attached to the various Institutions. The matrons found it a real treat, and it was more than a mere relaxation to many a trusty keeper.

THE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

That most humanely governed institution, under the guardianship of Dr. RANNEY, was also the scene of cheerfulness, though of a more subdued character than might obtain elsewhere, inasmuch as the minds here brought for healing care are not benefited by any exciting surroundings, therefore fireworks were tabooed, and music, soothing to the soul, together with speechifying upon the spirit of the occasion by the inmates, took their place. Dr. RANNEY, also, made a few remarks calculated to do good where any impression would find a place. At the various correctional institutions, the prisoners were allowed every privilege consistent with their positions.

At the Colored Orphan Asylum, a reception took place in the morning, when a cordial interchange of patriotic sentiment was made. A good dinner was served the children at noon, and a limited display of fireworks in the beautiful grounds during the evening. The Superintendent sought more to impress upon the minds of his young charge that this was a time to be proud and thankful for, but not at present one of unalloyed gladness. The impression was wholesome, and was well received by all. The recent fair for the benefit of this institution was unusually successful. It netted one thousand four hundred and seventy-five dollars.

Not the least demonstration was made for the poor children of the "Five Points House of Industry"—not a voice of merriment nor a sign of recognition of the day was to be met within its walls.

THE LADIES' HOME MISSION.

The regenerating influence of this Association is gradually bringing forth results for good in the heathenish district where its headquarters are located. A popular ruling spirit, such as the Five Pointers can rely upon for human sympathy, they now have in the newly installed superintendent of the Home Missions, Rev. J. N. SHAFFER. His unassuming benevolence will have its weight, and be a worthy examample.

THE PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY.

The display of fireworks in the evening exceeded in taste and magnificence any exhibition within the memory of the "oldest inhabitant" of Manhattan Island. The TIMES has already published a complete list of the pieces which were to be exhibited, and to repeat them now would occupy more space than can be well afforded. At the City Hall the display was really worth the attendance of the tens of thousands assembled to witness it. A fine band of music was on duty, as at every other place where fireworks were exhibited, and kept down the impatience of the thousands who had come to see only the fireworks. The entire exhibition proved the correctness of the Committee's judgment in awarding to Messrs. EDON the duty and honor of preparing them. Having already published a list of the pieces intended to be presented, it is only necessary now to say that the entire programme was carried out to the letter, and to note those which received the most popular applause. All of the pieces were really magnificent, but those which elicited the greatest applause were the engagement between the Monitor and Merrimac, and the closing piece, a temple of Liberty, with Gen. MCCLELLAN as the centre piece, which was really a chef d'œuvre of pyrotechnic art. At all the other places named by the Committee who had this special matter in charge, the programme was carried out to the intense delight of thousands.

THE TIMES PYROTECHNICS.

The splendid pyrotechnic display in front of the City Hall found a formidable rival in the spontaneous illumination in front of the TIMES Building. The crowd, enveloped in darkness Egyptian darkness between the exhibition of the display pieces, was suddenly startled by the halo of light which burst forth from our large illuminated signs, which shed a brilliant lustre over Printing-house-square.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,

in countless jets of gas, shone forth resplendent, amid the ah's and oh's of the thousands of up-gazing admirers. We had prepared an even more beautiful and extensive, as well as patriotic exhibition, for the Park-row side of the building, but the unusually large consumption of gas throughout the City prevented its successful working. As it was, however, we literally eclipsed all our neighbors, and made our office as prominent as the signs of the TIMES could conveniently allow. It was but one of the many signs of our prosperity, and made us for the moment almost as celebrated as has our recent monopoly of the news from Richmond.

ACCIDENTS AND INCIDENTS.

About 11 P. M., on the night of the 3d, JAMES GIVEN was conveyed to the New-York Hospital, with a serious laceration of the arm, received while engaged in a street fight at the corner of Franklin and Greenwich streets. They were arrested and locked up..... HENRY CAMBER, of No. 92 Sheriff-street, was severely wounded by the premature explosion of a pistol which he was handling in a careless manner..... Late Friday evening, a little girl named SEDONIA TATERSIA, residing at No. 270 First-avenue, while looking at the fireworks from the roof of the above number, fell therefrom to the sidewalk, and was instantly killed .....Quite a number of fires occurred during the day and evening, but generally the damage was trifling, having been extinguished in most cases without the aid of the firemen.

At about 2 o'clock Friday morning a fire occurred at No. 299 Canal-street, in a fruit-store, occupied by JAMES WALTON; WM. BARTLETT also occupied a portion of the first floor. The damage amounted to about $1,000, upon which there was an insurance in the Beekman Insurance Company. The stores of E. D. LANCASTER and J. T. THOMPSON, adjoiding, were considerably damaged by water. The fire was occasioned by some fire-crackers, which were thrown into the store.

COOPER INSTITUTE.

CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH OF JULY BY THE STUDENTS.

The students, or scholars as they may be more properly termed, attached to the Cooper Institute held their anniversary meeting yesterday evening, which was attended by a large number of interested and delighted friends. It was nominally called a meeting of the "Cooper Union Debating Society," but in reality a social gathering of the scholars and their friends. The exercises, for which we have space for but brief notice, were opened by an address from G. T. CHAPMAN, the President, which was followed by the reading of the Declaration of Independence, by J. MCQUIRK. In the course of the evening sentiments were proposed and responded to in the following order:

"The Fourth of July."—Responded to by W. R. GALBRAITH.

"The Union."—W. J. MCCLUNE.

"Washington."—W. W. SCOTT.

"The President of the United States."—ALEXANDER THEIRS.

"The Army and Navy."—R. S. DUGDALE.

"The Stars and Stripes."—S. G. ELDER.

In the course of the evening and during the intervals between the addresses the assemblage was treated to some very excellent music, under the direction of Mr. J. LONG. The "Star Spangled Banner" as sung by Mr. J. A. ADAMS, was received of course with the most vociferous applause, and the "Meeting of the Waters," by Miss G. HARTSHORNE, received due appreciation. The occasion was one of which the scholars may well feel proud, and if they derived as much enjoyment as did the large assemblage of friends in attendance, they were abundantly compensated for their efforts.

CELEBRATIONS OUT OF TOWN.

ON LONG ISLAND.

ANNIVERSARY IN BROOKLYN.

The National Anniversary was celebrated in this city, on Friday, in about the usual manner. The city authorities being limited to $1,000, of course their demonstration is never a very extensive one. On this, as on former occasions of the kind, it was limited to the firing of salutes, morning, noon and night; the ringing of the bells for half an hour at three different times, and a meagre display of fireworks on Fort Green, in the Western District, and at the Union Base Ball grounds in the Eastern District. The vast multitude of men, women and children who assembled on Fort Greene in the evening was the feature of the day, and that which elicited the most attention and comment. The formation of the ground—rising gradually, as it does, from the Canton-street plateau to the highest point of land in the Park—is peculiarly adapted to set off an assemblage of people to the best advantage; and when occupied, as it was on Friday evening, by not less than 50,000 persons, representing all nationalities, every class of the population, the old, middle-aged and the young, standing at the lower end of the plateau, where the eye could take in at the Union Club at Philadelphia, excluded [illegible] stables."

These horses had done well at the Spring Meeting in Philadelphia, and in anticipation of seeing the performance of the advertisement faithfully fulfilled the people went to the race.

How far justified they were in that belief will now be seen.

THE FIRST RACE

was promptly called at 3 o'clock, when it was found that instead of the ten horses named there were but two to be mounted. This announcement produced, as well it might, the greatest dissatisfaction. There is a vast difference between the pleasure to be derived from the sight of a race in which ten horses participate, and one in which but two contest, and the popular grumbling was both loud and deep.

However, Mr. WARD'S b. c. Blondin, and Mr. MINOR'S ch. c. West Roxbury, the one mounted by a gay little contraband named CHESTERFIELD MUKES, in red, plaid and white, and the other by a little white boy named FRANK CASEY, in red and white stripes, were brought up and shown off before the disappointed crowd.

THE FIRST HEAT

was not an exciting one. West Roxbury won the toss up, and at the tap of the drum was a little in advance of Blondin, a position which he held without perceptible change, by the first quarter, the half, the third quarter and the stand, which he passed on the first mile in 2 minutes 5 seconds. The second mile was but a repetition of the first. The running was done in but a exercising gait, and with the betting in favor of West Roxbury, he came in with but little effort in 4 minutes 13½ seconds.

The usual rush from the Grand Stand to the Judges' Stand, to see the official record, was made; the usual swearing and grumbling about "made races" took place; the usual good-natured adjournment to the refreshment bar followed, and with impatience we waited for

THE SECOND HEAT.

Why they should come up tired none but the very inside-initiated can tell, but tired the horses were, and exhibited but little spirit or life as they were brought up for the second trial. At the start, as before, West Roxbury had what seemed to us a decided advantage, which, by the time he reached the half-mile post, was increased to quite a gap, and yet growing. The mile was made in 2 minutes, 3 seconds, the Eastern horse being far in advance, and excited believers in him trying to induce people to bet against him. On they went at a moderate gait, the distance between them growing greater and greater, until they reached the half mile, when Blondin put forth his utmost endeavor that he might save his stakes. It was no use, however, for West Roxbury came in in 4:05, distancing him, and, of course, taking all the money.

The race was flat, stale and unprofitable to all spectators. Very little money changed hands, and the horses did themselves no credit.

was a beautiful race. To be sure, the same objection is to be urged, that instead of fifteen horses mounted, there were four, but, setting that aside, there was genuine sport in the race.

The horses mounted were: Mr. BUSH'S b. h. Trovatore, Capt. MOORE'S br. m. Laura Faris, Mr. WARD'S ch. c. Reporter, and Mr. MORRIS' g. g. Throg's Neck.

The pools sold both on the night before the race and at the track, with Laura Faris for the favorite against the field, she bringing in pools of $100, $50, $75 and $50.

At the start Trovatore was quite behind, the rest got off well, and went along at a good gait, passing the quarter pole with Throg's Neck in the lead. He was hard pressed by Laura to the half mile, but he passed that, yet in the advance, in 56 seconds, while Reporter, who had been steadily nearing him, lapped him before they reached the third quarter pole, where they passed head and head. The race now became very exciting, Laura's friends looked blue, and would have "hedged" with alacrity; while the backers of Throg's Neck were in transports with him, name and all. Coming home, however, Reporter lost his temporary position, fell back, and the gray gelding came in in 1 minute 53 seconds. Here, however, one of those little changes which will take place in this mutatory world of ours occurred, and during the shifting Trovatore, who had been doing only moderately well, became suddenly fleet, and springing onward led his mates as they went dashing by the quarter. At this Laura pricked up, or at least her rider did, and while Throg's Neck was far behind, she made the half mile in better time than any of them, causing the betting blood of the spectators on the anxious seats to rise to fever heat. But she didn't do as well as she promised, and Trovatore led the race by the third quarter and came home victorious in 3 minutes 42½ seconds. The relative positions were as follows: 1, Trovatore; 2, Laura Faris; 3, Reporter; 4, Throg's Neck.

With this race everyone was delighted. All things seemed fair, the contest was a close one, the interest was maintained throughout, and there was no grumbling or apparent dissatisfaction anywhere.

THE LAST RACE,

for the Tiffany prize, was a queer one. The following entries were made:

P. C. BUSH, c. h. Logan.
WARNOCK, c. g. Rice.
BABCOCK, c. m. Molly.
MCDONALD, c. m. No Name.
W. H. STRONE, b. h. One-Eyed Jim.
G. E. BUSH, c. g. Smashington.

The last horse was entered under protest. They ran half-mile heats.

After a great waste of time in getting a fair start, the horses got off and came frantically in, stringing out long and far apart, as follows:

WARNOCK'S c. g. Rice won the heat in 55 seconds, followed first by One-eyed Jim, second by MCDONALD'S mare, and third by Smashington.

THE SECOND HEAT

developed a new order of going, for the horses came in with Logan in the van, he winning the heat in 54½ seconds, followed by One-eyed Jim and Rice.

THE THIRD HEAT,

in conformity with an apparent usage, varied the placing by letting One-eyed Jim win in 55 seconds, followed by Logan and Rice. This was a very good heat, and a very interesting sight. The riders failed to preserve the utmost good nature, and it was feared that before the race was decided there would be something passed between them besides words.

THE FOURTH HEAT

Brought trouble amongst them. After a number of false starts, they got off with Logan in the advance. He was hard pushed by One-Eyed Jim, who, in turn, was closely followed by MCDONALD'S mare. As they came down the home stretch, head and head, the drivers lashed each other in the face, hallooed, and in all possible ways annoyed each his rival.

On they came. An unfortunate man attempted to cross the track and was knocked stiff, by Logan, who, passing on unheeding him, went by the score at the exact moment with One-Eyed Jim. Cries of "dead-heat," "foul," and so on, rose from the excited crowd, to which the judges paid no heed, but presently announced that the two leading horses were ruled out for foul riding, and that MCDONALD'S mare was entitled to the heat in 57 seconds. Rice and Smashington following.

A great deal of ill feeling was created by this announcement; the jockeys attempted to get into the judges' stand to argue the case; the spectators took sides; the betting men canvassed the effect upon wagers, and the old Harry was to pay generally. In the meantime the unfortunate knocked-down was carried senseless off on a shutter.

THE FIFTH AND LAST HEAT.

MCDONALD'S mare led off finely, and came in in 1 minute and 3 seconds, followed in order by Rice and Smashington.

This closed the sport for the day. We have given a non-professional description of the day, for the benefit of those who were not present. To all such we say, the races promise very well, do well, and are open to a great deal of praise and censure. Our room will not permit of our making sundry suggestions to the keepers of the track, to the reckless imbibers of strong drink, and to the brisk shufflers of cards who infest the track—suggestions which would be of service to them all—so we will be content by urging that hereafter, on the day of the race, the morning papers shall be furnished with advertisements which shall truthfully and literally inform the public as to what will take place. This done, Mr. CASSADY may be sure of all support from the Press and the people. The second day will be to-morrow, when a fine race will be run for $600.

IN NEW-JERSEY.

DISPLAY IN JERSEY CITY.

The eighty-sixth anniversary of our National Independence was celebrated in Jersey City in a manner becoming the occasion. The day was ushered in with the ringing of bells and the firing of a salute of thirty-four guns from the foot of York-street. At 11 o'clock public exercises were held, under the auspices of the Common Council, in the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Washington and Sussex streets. A highly patriotic and eloquent oration was delivered by CHARLES H. WINFIELD, Esq., and the Declaration of Independence read by Mr. GEORGE H. LANSLEY. A prayer was offered by Rev. C. K. IMBRIE, and National hymns sung by a large and efficient choir, under the direction of Mr. SAMUEL D. MAYER. The interior of the edifice was handsomely decorated with American flags. A large and enthusiastic audience was present.

In the evening a grand display of fireworks, under the direction of Messrs. J. C. & I. EBER, was given at Hamilton-square, head of Jersey-avenue, and the exhibition was witnessed by several thousand people, who frequently manifested their delight by applause and cheers. The pieces were as follows: Scroll Wheel, Peruvian Cross, Saturn and his Satellites, Illuminated Yew Tree, Tribute to Ceres, Kaleidoscope, Cascade, Magic Star, with five changes, Star of Independence, Scroll Pyramid, Triple Cross of Malta, Polka Dance and colored battery, Scroll Quadrille, Star of America, Temple of Liberty, containing a figure of Gen. MCCLELLAN, surmounted by an eagle and bearing the words "Union for ever." The intervals between the several pieces were occupied by firing rockets, bombs, etc. The whole affair passed off most satisfactory. The private exhibitions of fireworks of citizens were numerous, and were kept up until midnight. During the day flags were displayed from the shipping and public buildings, and many private residences were profusely decorated. No serious accidents occurred, and but very few arrests were made by the police for drunkenness.

AN OLD-FASHIONED DAY AT CRANEVILLE.

Craneville, N. J., on Friday, presented a scene which would have done credit to the olden times of '76. A beautiful orchard was selected for the grand exercises of the occasion, where a stand for the orator and seats for the vast assemblage were tastefully and conveniently arranged. The Declaration of Independence was read by NATHANIEL WILLIAMS, Esq., after which the orator of the day, Dr. W. E. BLAKENEY, delivered an eloquent and impressive oration. J. S. FERRIS, Esq., Marshal, and S. CAHILL, Esq., Chairman Committee of Arrangements, did themselves great credit in the performance of their duties.

THE OBSERVANCE AT NEWARK.

The exercises at this pleasant little place were commenced at sunrise by the ringing of bells and the firing of national salutes at different points in the city. At 7 o'clock the Fire Department and Military, comprising the First Regiment National Guard and the Putnam Horse Guard, formed on Park Place, the right resting on Centre-street. Maj.-Gen. RUNYON acted as Grand Marshal, assisted by a number of Aids. The procession moved at about 7½ o'clock, marching through Park-place to Broad-street, up Broad to State, thence into Washington, down Washington to Spruce, through Spruce to Broad, up Broad to Kinney, from Kinney into Mulberry, up Mulberry to Market, up Market to Broad, down Broad to the Methodist Episcopal Church, where a crowd had collected awaiting its arrival. The military appeared to decided advantage—the glittering helmets of the cavalry, who headed the parade, glancing in the bright sunlight, and the polished muskets of the infantry flashing as they passed through the pleasant shady streets. Many of the windows on the route were filled with ladies, who welcomed the soldiers with waving of hands and handkerchiefs. Between 9½ and 10 o'clock the procession halted before the church. After a short delay, during which the soldiers displayed their efficiency in the manual of arms, the doors were thrown open to the public, and the building was quickly filled. The decorations of the house were exceedingly simple, two Union flags being crossed above the pulpit—only these. While the audience were being seated the band played a March, which was well executed. An earnest prayer was made by Rev. J. P. Wilson, D. D., after which the choir sang "Hail Festal Day." The Declaration of Independence was next read by Mr. W. R. HOWELL, when the choir again sang, this time "The Ship of State," which was received with enthusiasm. Hon. JAS. BROOKS was then introduced as the orator of the day. Mr. BROOKS regretted not being more thoroughly prepared—the present serious aspect of affairs had so preyed upon his mind that he felt almost indisposed, and incapable of the task before him. Our country, he said, had been cradled in adversity. From a glance at its earlier history, the speaker turned to a more lengthy consideration of the period following the Declaration of Independence, and to subsequent events in its annals, whereby, for a time, the continuance of the Union seemed endangered; not forgetting to indulge in a sneering remark relative to the old "Bay State," and similar in style to many of those which formed the staple of his speech at the "Cooper Institute" in this City, a few nights ago, wherein he aimed the barbed arrows of his hate at all New-England. It is but justice to the people of Newark to say that the slur was not appreciated. Whatever may be the opinion of some, Mr. BROOKS declared it to be his, that the South are without cause in this quarrel, and utterly undeserving of sympathy. Rebellion must be met with a bold front. Before determined resistance it would succumb; and by the time another Anniversary of this, the National Sabbath of our land, he devoutly hoped to see these thirty millions of Americans once more a united and happy people.

At the close of the oration, the choir sang "The Union of Old can Never Die." The Benediction was then pronounced.

At noon and sunset salutes were fired and the bells were rung.

During the evening there was a display of fireworks at the South and Washington Parks.

THE CELEBRATION AT BRIDGEPORT.

The commemoration of the Fourth at Bridgeport was conducted with unusual spirit and success. The morning was ushered in by the ringing of the church bells and artillery salutes, and at 10 A. M., the streets were thronged with immense crowds, gathered from far and near, to witness the visit of Gov. BUCKINGHAM and his Staff, and the fine procession of military, firemen, civic societies, etc., which, at that hour, began to march through the city. At 2 P. M., the procession halted in front of the Court-house, where a prayer was offered up and the Declaration of Independence read.

Shortly afterward, the Governor and Staff, with the Mayor of the City, Mr. STERLING, the Marshals of the day, P. T. BARNUM, Esq., and a number of distinguished guests, sat down to a handsome banquet at the Sterling House, where a list of appropriate sentiments were read and eloquently responded to by gentlemen of note.

In reply to the seventh toast,

The Governor of the State of Connecticut—His patriotic course has forever endeared him in the hearts of our people. Welcome beneath every roof where loyalty dwells and thrice welcome upon this occasion of our National festivity.

Gov. BUCKINGHAM spoke as follows:

GOV. BUCKINGHAM'S SPEECH.

MR. PRESIDENT, GENTLEMEN, CITIZENS OF BRIDGEPORT: In response to the flattering language of the toast just read, deeply grateful as I feel, I have no speech to make beyond the expression of the proud pleasure you have conferred upon me by the unexpected and overwhelming cordiality of the reception with which you have this day honored me. You have been kind enough, withal, in that sentiment, to allude to my political career and services. For any merit that there may have been in my humble efforts to discharge my duty as a citizen and as the servant of the Commonwealth, the glorious teachings of that glorious mother, and the spirit of our Constitution and our Union alone deserve the credit. [Prolonged cheering.] Early taught that this Government, established by the people, and emanating from the people, was for the protection and benefit of that people, and growing with my growth in that religion, each day beholding its blessings expanding until they have covered the surface of our glorious land, and become the admiration of the world, I have, day by day, felt my affection and reverence for a Government so wise and so benificent, strike deeper and deeper root in my heart of hearts. [Enthusiastic applause.] And I have at length come to regard all those who would disrupt a fabric so sublime, who would tear down a temple so beautiful as our National Union and scatter ruin and darkness where all has been happiness and light, as enemies not only to the people of America—not only to you and me, and our children who are to follow us, in every tie and hope and interest on this earth, but as enemies of the whole human race. [Renewed and protracted cheers.] You have kindly referred to my patriotic course in the great crisis now upon us. For that you are under no obligations to me. Circumstances, guided by an overruling Providence, have called me to the place I hold, at an unprecedented time: and when I look abroad upon the patriotism it evokes around me, I thank God that I have lived in such a day and such an hour. [Great applause.]

The Governor here referred to some local political incidents which had occurred in Bridgeport a year ago, as thoroughly passed and obliterated, and fervently congratulated his hearers on the glow of patriotism that now mantles city and town. The noble response, he said, which Bridgeport and all Fairfield County had made to the call of the country, had even gladdened the heart of their citizens in distant lands. When one of these, having met for consultation with a few other Americans in a banking house in Paris, at the first outbreak of the rebellion, was informed by a glance at a paper just received that Bridgeport had voted $6,000 for the war fund, he had felt thrilled by the example and inspired at once to personal sacrifice. That gentleman was now the Colonel of the Fourteenth Regiment of the State Volunteers. [Immense applause.] A report of the Adjutant-General of the Commonwealth shows that Bridgeport alone has 1,697 militia-men regularly enrolled, and that of this number, 557, or nearly one-third, have gone to offer up their lives upon the altar of their country. [Great enthusiasm.] When it became necessary to organize under the last section of the act of 1861, more noble offerings were made here than anywhere else in the State, and to-day we have seen two of the finest companies in New-England ready to march, at the tap of the drum, to whatever scene of peril the crisis may prepare. [Tremendous applause.] And so I should be! Animated by the spirit of our sires, who made this day immortal in 1776, neither wealth nor life will be too dear to lay at the shrine of patriotism. Life is sweet; but it is sweeter far to die, if needs be, for our country—to die for all that makes this paltry life honorable or desirable! [Unparalleled cheering.] To-day the country is in greater danger than she has ever known since the throes of her birth. If we fail now in the effort to preserve this Temple of Freedom, better far would it have been to fail in the beginning of its structure—better to have failed in laying the foundation stone than now, when we were on the eve of capping the dome of the edifice. [Cheers.] Sad as the past has been, the future may be a still mightier flood of sorrow. This wave of grief may roll over every threshold and deluge every hearthstone in the land; but so long as one pulse of manhood and of honor throbs among us, so long as one cent or one drop of blood remains to give, let us unite all our vows and our efforts for the suppression of this most unholy rebellion, cost what it may. "The Union must and shall be preserved!"

The Governor resumed his seat amid a most tumultuous storm of cheering, sustained with indescribable earnestness and vehemence.

The remainder of the afternoon and evening were devoted to a brilliant review; artillery practice on the shores of the Sound, in the presence of many thousands, a balloon ascension, the Ladies' Festival, with superb tableaux and vocal music at the Court house by the ladies of Bridgeport in behalf of sick and wounded soldiers; a reception by the Governor at the Sterling House, and a festival and supper given by the ladies at Franklin Hall. It is to be regretted that we could not give in detail the prominent incidents of a celebration said to have been the finest ever seen in Connecticut, and linking with the beautiful town of Bridgeport, recollections too agreeable to pass away.

THE FOURTH AT RAVENSWOOD.

At Ravenswood the Fourth was celebrated with appropriate festivities. The people met in St. Thomas' Church where the Rector prayed, Mr. J. H. WILLIAMS read the Farewell Address, the audience sang, Mr. GEO. W. BEEBEE, Jr., delivered a very excellent and timely oration, which was enthusiastically received, and then all adjourned to "let off" fire-crackers and Roman Candles.

The fund of $150 raised for more pretentious fireworks was appropriated to the relief of wounded soldiers.

AT PORT RICHMOND, STATEN ISLAND.

At Port Richmond, Staten Island, the day was celebrated with more than usual spirit. In a beautiful grove the Declaration of Independence was read by R. A. WEST, Esq., of the Commercial Advertiser and an eloquent oration delivered by Rev. Dr. DUTCHER.

At night, the Engine and Hose Company's houses were beautifully decorated with many colored lanterns, and at "The Zepher Company's" quarters, addresses were made by C. N. R. DISOSWAY, Esq., of New-York, and by M. R. CADMUS.

During the day, however, a very severe accident happened. Some lads were pouring powder into a flask. The powder was ignited by a cracker, and exploded. Five youths were injured. It was reported that one of them lost the sight of both eyes. Another was not expected to recover. Among the boys was the son of Rev. Dr. BROWNLEE. He was, however, but little injured.

FOURTH OF JULY IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Friday, July 4.

The Eighty-sixth Anniversary of our National Independence was observed to-day with the usual honors and patriotic observances. GEORGE TICKNOR CURTIS delivered a very long and quite a conservative oration in the Academy of Music. Patriotic speeches were also made at a civic dinner in Faneuil Hall. A regatta on Charles River also took place. Balloon ascensions, with magnificent fireworks, were let off in the evening. This constituted the general programme of the day. The weather was delightful. Everything passed off quietly and pleasantly.

THE BOSTON REGATTA.

BOSTON, Saturday, July 5.

At the City Regatta, yesterday, for four-oared boats, three miles, the first prize of $125, was won by the boat George J. Brown, of New-York; the second prize of $75, by Tickler, of Boston—time 21 min. 1½ sec., and 21 min. and 6½ sec. At the race of six-oared boats, the first prize of $175 was won by the Minion, rowed by the Minion] Boat Club—time, 24 min. and 24 sec. The second prize of $75 was won by MCKAY—time, 24 min. 26 sec. Single-scull wherries, five miles: first prize, $75, was won by JAMES HAMMELL, of Pittsburgh; the second prize, by T. F. BOYLE—time, 16 min. 15¾ sec., and 16 min. 39 sec; Double-scull wherries: first prize, $100, won by Edith, of the Wilson Boat Club; second prize, of $75, by John Hancom—time 17 min. 6 sec., and 17 min. 33 sec.

MISCELLANEOUS REBELLION NEWS.

THE OCCUPATION OF CUMBERLAND GAP.

GEN. MORGAN'S CONGRATULATORY ORDER.

HEADQUARTERS SEVENTH DIVISION, ARMY OF THE OHIO, CUMBERLAND GAP, June 18, 1862.

Officers and soldiers of the Seventh Division of the Army of the Ohio:

GENERAL ORDER No. 43.—As one of the commanding officers of the army of the Union, in the name of the President, I thank you, one and all, for the heroic devotion and soldierlike zeal which has marked every step of your progress, from the moment of your taking up your line of march from Cumberland Ford.

Cumberland Gap, the Gibraltar of America, has been won by you without the loss of a single comrade. And be assured that your laurels are none the less bright and glorious because they are unstained with blood.

To-day, DECOURCEY'S Brigade, the first to arrive, raised and saluted the National colors in honor of your brilliant success.

This was right and proper, for so noble an achievement shou d be promptly commemorated.

The other brigades, in the order of their arrival, will plant their colors at sunset, accompanied by a National salute from the pinnacle of the mountain, in the following order:

On Thursday, BAIRD'S brigade; Friday, the brigade of SPEARS; on Saturday, the brigade of CARTER.

Brave men should ever be generous, and great actions should never be marred by personal violence.

Comrades, I am proud of being your companion in arms. Permit me to regard you all as brothers, who have won my affections and respect by your great efforts in surmounting gigantic obsticles, in the passage of the Cumberland and Pine Mountains. Allow me to return you my thanks and to salute and congratulate you.

CHAS. O. JOLINE, A. A. G.

The above order was read to the troops.

A correspondent of the Louisville Democrat writes from Cumberland Gap under date of June 20:

"The fortifications on the Kentucky side of the Gap are formidable and complete. Nature has made this the strongest position in America, and what remained to finish its strength has been done by the Southern army. Nearly one year's labor, by an army, varying at different times from four to ten thousand strong, has been expended in preparing its defences; and so strong has it been rendered that competent military critics declare it to be an impossibility to take it, if it were defended with anything like resolution and bravery.

The calibre of the guns left by the enemy ranges from twenty-four to 64-pounders. There is no doubt but that they waited until the last moment, with the hope that we would attack them in front; and the fact that Gen. STEVENSON, with his body guard of cavalry, left the Gap only four hours before our arrival, shows that they had a lingering hope that we would not attack them from the Tennessee side.

Much more damage has been done to property on the Kentucky than the Tennessee and Virginia side; showing that although they claimed the right of doing as they pleased, and urged with much warmth the propriety of being let alone, they were nevertheless not very regardful of the rights of others, and claimed the privilege of murdering and pillaging the citizens of a sister State without the slightest provocation, or even so much as a shadow of justification. Appearances indicated that the enemy were well supplied with meat and bread, though they had neither sugar, coffee nor salt. To escape being captured, they were compelled to leave nearly all their personal baggage, which, however, together with their tents, was so torn up as to be altogether valueless. Many letters were found, one of which was from a gentleman in Louisville, inquiring the best way to ship ammunition to the Gap, whether by the way of Lexington and Richmond or Danville. Several of the chivalry left a note addressed to Gen. CARTER, which pretended to give the reasons for leaving in such haste, and concluded by indulging in terms of personal abuse not very complimentary to the General. In passing through the valley, after leaving Big Creek Gap, we found most of the wealthy citizens along the road to be Secessionists. At Fincastle a very wealthy man, by the name of KINCAID, resides, who has several sons in the Southern army, and has contributed largely to the rebel cause. As the Nineteenth Kentucky passed his residence, the musicians played Yankee Doodle, which, together with the sight of the old flag, caused the old gentleman to grin with a sort of a devilish expression, which showed that he was fully possessed by the demon Secession. At another house on the road a sick soldier, belonging to Gen. SPEARE' brigade, asked a young woman for a drink of water, to which she replied by throwing a cupful in his face. The proprietor of the house, although for a long time a Union man, ultimately went over to the enemy. He had plenty of hay, which he sold to our Quartermaster, who paid him very liberally in Confederate scrip, very much to the surprise and regret of the Confederate citizen, who said he had hoped to receive something better.

It is proper to remark, however, that all the poor and men in moderate circumstances were for the Union. At every cross-roads Union children and men have congregated to meet their friends and welcome the Union army. Women met their husbands and fathers, and mothers their sons, who had been for many months separated from them, and warm and tender greetings were exchanged. Tears flowed freely at the sight of the old banner, and many a "God bless you!" fell from the lips of venerable men and women as we passed in silence before them. Many of them brought out their Union flags, that had been secreted for months, and once more unfurled them to the breeze.

The wheat and corn in the valley seem to be growing finely, and there is every prospect of abundant crops.

The men on the march behaved exceedingly well, and all the regiments deserve credit for the fortitude exhibited under such privations and hardships.

The enemy were forced out of their stronghold, and, if they had not fled with the utmost precipitation, would have all been captured. Doubtless thousands of people all over the country have wondered why Cumberland Gap has not been taken long before. To those best acquainted with the facts, this is not at all strange. The great distance between Lexington and the Ford, and the extremely bad roads, prevented an accumulation of subsistence sufficient to justify an advance; and when our people at home, who are enjoying all the comforts of life, will only remember that at last, when we marched into East Tennessee, the men were upon half, and part of the time, quarter rations, and all the time entirely without sugar and coffee, they will not be astonished that we have not been more rapid in our movements. We hope, however, to be immediately supplied with everything necessary for our subsistence, as the road over the Gap is sufficiently good to enable wagons to pass safely and rapidly.

It is not proper that our numbers should be stated. There is nothing improper, however, in saying that we have plenty of the finest artillery in the world, some very good cavalry, under that prince of good fellows, Col. MUNDAY, and, together with our regiments of fine infantry, we have no fears of whatever we may meet.

OPERATIONS OF THE GUNBOATS IN THE APPOMATTOX RIVER.

Correspondence of the New-Haven Palladium.

UNITED STATES STEAMER PORT ROYAL, APPOMATTOX RIVER, Friday, June 27, 1862.

We ran down to Jamestown day before yesterday evening, and returned to City Point at 4 P. M. yesterday. Commander ROGERS, commanding the squadron on James River, came on board this vessel with his boat's crew and some marines. Very soon ran up signal for the squadron to "weigh anchor"—all soon under way, stood by City Point, leaving the Galena to warm them there if necessary, her draft of water not admitting of her going with us. We entered the Appomattox River, the Stepping Stones going ahead and buoying out a channel over the bar. This done, we took the lead, followed by the other boats, viz.: Monitor, Mahaskas, Maratanza, Delaware, Southfield, Stepping Stones, Jacob Bell and Island Belle. After steaming some six miles we came to a narrow pass in the river, (this was at 8 P. M.,) and suddenly, like a clap of thunder, volley followed volley and rifle-shot came against our sides and over us. It reminded me of being in a barn in a hail-storm. We were not long in letting "sliver" our pivots and howitzers, the squadron soon followed in the chorus. Under this enchanting music the enemy "skedaddled" at about 9 o'clock P. M. We had the misfortune to get aground, made signal to our consorts, who, in company with us, kept up a steady fire until midnight, clearing the woods effectually. Having got afloat again we dropped down about a mile and came to anchor. The Maratanzas also got ashore and we had to wait the rise of tide for her. Our men lay down after midnight and ready for a call. This morning early a contraband came on board and said that we last night had killed a number of gentlemen and some horses, also a negro child. He hoped that we would not fire on them any more (the negro fraternity he meant,) as the negroes were quite thick about there. Capt. Rogers gave him to understand that he did not come here to kill negroes or negro children, but that if the enemy fired on the squadron, they would be paid in their own coin. By this expedition, which was a sort of "feeler" to find out how things stood up this branch of the James River, we, by optical observation, informed ourselves that the enemy had resorted to his old game, viz: had the channel barricaded with vessels loaded with boxes of tobacco and barrels of stone, about seven miles from the river's mouth. The conscription law went into effect in "secessia" on the 23d inst., and all the old and young that can carry arms, are pressed now into the ranks. One "put out" on the 24th, and is now on board the Galena.

JUNE 28.—The Mahaska got off last night; the Island Belle is yet ashore. I will close this and await our exit from the river for another, for I suspect we will have a "brush" at the mouth.

EXPEDITION UP THE APPOMATTOX.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer writes from Fortress Monroe under date of July 1:

Last Saturday the Monitor, Island Belle, Stepping Stones, and one or two other gunboats, went a short distance up the Appomattox in order to ascertain the probabilities attending an effort to destroy the railroad bridge at Petersburgh. The rebels were well prepared with batteries to defend the approaches to the city by either channel; but a short and thorough cannonading compelled them to beat a retreat and leave their works. They were supported by some 5,000 infantry, who were scattered about so as to do as much damage as possible by picking off the gunners, or anybody who chanced to afford them an opportunity.

The enemy kept up a steady fire, but without doing material damage, and, as we had no infantry to land and hold the earthworks after clearing them, it seemed of little use to waste time and powder on them. Several attempts were made by the different boats to get up the deepest channel, near enough to fire the bridge, but they proved ineffectual, and, besides that, when the Island Belle was engaged in testing the feasibility of passing up to the bridge, she grounded, and all attempts to relieve her were unavailing.

The enemy soon observed her condition, and having brought their guns to bear on her, commenced a rapid fire upon her. All feasible means having been applied to remove her, but in vain, she was fired, and the necessary quantity of powder placed where its ignition would insure the complete destruction of the vessel. In a short time she was beyond utility, and the crews of the balance of the vessels having fired a coal field and a large dépôt building, returned into the James River. The Island Belle was quite a favorite little boat, and was well known last season as doing good service on the Potomac. Her armament was light, as is usual with vessels of her size, carrying about one 32-pounder and a couple of howitzers.

ITEMS FROM MEMPHIS.

Correspondence of the Chicago Times.

MEMPHIS, Friday, June 27. VIA CAIRO, Sunday, June 29.

On Wednesday, JACKSON'S Cavalry made its appearance in force along the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, and for the avowed purpose of burning the cotton, and punishing all who had failed to conduct themselves to their liking. The cavalry force under JACKSON was large, and seemed to be bound for District No. 9, in which there was considerable cotton, none of which the Confederates had time to burn before the occupation of Memphis. This district is said to contain about 1,500 bales of cotton. This, or the larger portion of it, was destroyed by the Confederates.

On Wednesday, two persons who were up there buying cotton were arrested and taken off as prisoners. Two merchants of Memphis who were also out there were arrested and taken South, and the Confederate cavalry threatened to take as prisoners and to destroy all the property of persons who on any pretext should come to the city of Memphis. They also stated that their intention is to destroy the railroad and telegraph every time they are repaired, and to prevent the working of either.

The city election yesterday resulted in the choice of a Union ticket, as follows: Mayor, John Parke, re-elected; Recorder, P. M. Dickinson; Tax Collector, John H. Bowen, re-elected; Collector of Privileges, John Newsom, re-elected; Wharf Master, John J. Butler; Chief of Police, Patrick M. Winters; Board of Aldermen, Sam. Tigble, (re-elected); B. F. C. Brooks, Louis Wonderman, B. H. Henghold, Henry Clark, Wm. Mulholland, Dr. R. L. Laskie, W. Harvey, John Eagan, J. Hall, S. Ogden, John Gager, B. Fenton, John C. Powers. The number of votes polled in the city was 697. Last year the city vote at the municipal election was 3,245, showing a falling off of 2,548 votes.

The telegraphic wires a few miles beyond Germantown, were cut yesterday. Several persons who were sent out by the company to put up the wires, have not been heard of since they left. Col. BACON, of the office in this city, thinks the parties were captured by the Confederates.

Gen. GRANT has selected EDWARD MCGEHE'S residence, on the Charleston Railroad, two miles from the city, for his headquarters. Gen. GRANT'S family will join him here.

Letter mails from all points north, northwest and northeast, are received at the city post-office with much regularity. Papers have not yet made their appearance in any considerable quantity.

HOW GEN. BUELL DEALS WITH DISHONEST SUTLERS.

The following order shows how Gen. BUELL deals with dishonest sutlers:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE OHIO, IN CAMP, June 19, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 23.—It has been satisfactorily shown that W. G. SEMPLE, sutler of the Second Kentucky Regiment, contrary to law, arranged with Wagon Master S. HUDSON for the transportation of sutler's goods in Government wagons, from Hamburgh Landing to the camps of this army, in consideration of which the Wagon Master was to receive $10 per load, which stores were discovered in the process of transportation. In another case the goods of a Sutler were found in process of transportation in Government wagons, but without the knowledge of the Wagon Master.

The captured stores in both cases are directed to be forfeited, and will be turned over to the Medical Director for the use of the sick and wounded. In the first case the Sutler and Wagon-master will be forthwith dismissed from their places; the Wagon-master forfeiting whatever pay, not exceeding $100, that may be due him, and in the second case the Wagon-master, for neglecting his duty, will be discharged, and the teamsters will forfeit whatever pay, not exceeding $25 each, that may be due them.

It is also shown that SHULTZE & STEWART, sutlers of Thirty-eighth Illinois Volunteers, engaged Wagon-master WATMEN to haul goods for them, agreeing to pay the Wagon-master $25 a load, and that one load was hauled under this contract. Wagon-master WATMAN will in consequence forfeit whatever pay may be due him, not exceeding $100, and be discharged from the service. Sutlers SHULTZE and STEWART not belonging to the command, the disposition to be made of them is left to the General commanding the army to which the Thirty-eighth Illinois Volunteers belong.

By command of Maj.-Gen. BUELL.

JAMES B. FRY, A. A. G., Chief of Staff.

GEN. COX'S ARMY.

THIRD PROVISIONAL BRIGADE, KANAWHA DIVISION, (MOUNTAIN DEPARTMENT,) MEADOW BLUFF, GREENBRIER COUNTY, Va., June 25, 1862.

Col. GEORGE CROOK, commanding Third Provisional Brigade, has just returned from an expedition into Monroe County, in search of Gen HETH, who was encamped at Salt Sulphur Springs, about thrity-five miles from this place. Col. CROOK had received positive information that Gen. HETH, who has a force of between two and three thousand men, was exhausting that rich agricultural region of all its supplies of provisions, grain and forage, and was so severely enforcing the impressment law, as to drive hundreds of the half-loyal men into the mountains.

Since his inglorious defeat at Lewisburgh, on the 23d of last month, he has been very bitter and vindictive in forcing new conscripts into his army. The mountains are full of refugees. As many as seventy of these hunted men were concealed at one place of rendezvous. So many laboring men have thus been driven away, as seriously to impair agricultural labor, and to lead to fear lest there be suffering another year. These, in addition to reasons of a more purely military character, induced Col. CROOK to plan an expedition to Salt Sulphur, to drive Gen. HETH'S force out of that region.

Col. CROOK'S force consisted of about 1,750 men, made up from the Thirty-sixth, Forty-fourth and Forty-seventh Ohio Regiments, a battalion of the Second Virginia Cavalry, and six pieces of artillery. Fearing that Gen. HETH would attempt to retreat without risking a battle, we marched around to the west of Salt Sulphur, and then cut off his retreat toward Mercer County, where Gen. LORING has a force in front of Gen. COX.

Thus cut off, he hurried East to Union, and thence to the mountains directly South, toward Salt Pond, on the way to Dublin Depôt, on the Tennessee Railroad. His scouts gave him prompt notice of our coming, but notwithstanding he left most precipitately, and his force was in a most demoralized condition. This flight has greatly disgusted the rebel citizens of Monroe. Gen. HETH has claimed to be a protector of this region against Federal invaders. At Lewisburgh, he attempted to drive Col. CROOK out of Greenbrier, and boldly gave him battle. Col. CROOK defeated his greatly superior force and utterly routed him. Now at Salt Sulphur, in Monroe county, he has refused to defend his own camp, and has sought safety in a hurried flight. Not only are the citizens disgusted with him, but his own army, made up largely from this region, is disgusted too. Another important effect of this expedition will be the relief which it will tend to give to the oppressed people in that region. There is no probability that Gen. HETH will return to Monroe county. We have shown that we can march fearlessly through that section of country, and the oppressed will take courage, and the secession element will at once be put upon its good behavior. We took several hundred fat cattle, which Gen. HETH had not time to drive away, besides a small amount of army supplies. The expedition was admirably managed by Col. CROOK, who combines caution and boldness in a very rare degree. We captured six rebel prisoners. Our only loss was CARPER HEWITT

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

A brief dispatch from New-Madrid, dated yesterday, announces that "Vicksburgh is ours." No particulars are yet received.

The Secretary of War received on Friday the following brief dispatches from the Mississippi fleets:

UNITED STATES FLAGSHIP HARTFORD; ABOVE VICKSBURGH, June 18, (via MEMPHIS, July 2.

Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

The fleet passed up above Vicksburgh this morning, and silenced the batteries while passing, but received their raking fire as soon as we passed. I have communicated with Gen. HALLECK and Commander DAVIS. A. G. FARRAGUT, Flag-Officer.

Vià MEMPHIS, July 2, 1862.

To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

I have arrived at Island No. 76, and am in communication with Flag-Officer FARRAGUT.

C. H. DAVIS, Flag-Officer.

The battles of Monday and Tuesday last, finishing up the series lasting through seven days, satisfied the rebels that all attempts to overcome the Army of the Potomac would be in vain, and since Tuesday night, as we learn by the latest dispatches from Gen. MCCLELLAN to the War Department, there has been no fighting. The fighting on the last two days was of the most terrific character, and the defeat of the rebels was most complete. Even the Richmond Examiner acknowledges that the rebel army was repulsed on Monday, and that it suffered most terribly in killed and wounded; aad its defeat on Tuesday, as we learn from our own dispatches, was even more decided—the gunboats playing an important part, and carrying havoc into the rebel ranks with their heavy shells. Seventeen of our gunboats are now in the James River, protecting the flanks of our army. Gen. MCCLELLAN states that our forces have not been beaten in any conflict, and that they could not be driven from the field by the uttermost efforts of the enemy. No guns have been lost since the engagement of Friday, the 27th ult., when Gen. MCCALL'S Division was overwhelmed at the commencement of the battle of Gaines' Hill, and some twenty-five pieces fell into the hands of the enemy. A correct statement of our losses in killed, wounded and missing cannot yet be given, and the estimates vary from fifteen to twenty thousand. We have in our hands less than a thousand rebel prisoners, though many more were captured, but released during the movement to the James River.

For the early and reliable lists of sick and wounded arriving at Fortress Monroe, which we are in the habit of presenting to our readers, we have to acknowledge the facilities kindly thrown in the way of our correspondent there, not only by Dr. CUYLER, the able medical Director of that Department, but his polite and indefatigable assistant, Mr. VALENTINE M. SILVA.

Two steam transports have arrived at this port from Port Royal—the Ocean Queen on Friday, and the Arago yesterday. There is very little news. Our troops had evacuated James Island and returned to Port Royal. Among the passengers by the Arago are eighty wounded officers, non-commissioned officers and privates.

Gen. SHIELDS has not resigned, and has no intention of resigning. Accompanied by a portion of his Staff, he is for the present in New-York, in obedience to the orders of the President. He has been assigned the important duty of aiding in organizing and training, for immediate service, the new quota of volunteers.

CONGRESS.

The Senate was in session about half an hour on Friday, but did no business of importance. In the Senate yesterday, a resolution calling upon the Secretary of War for the reports of Col. CANBY, relative to operations in New-Mexico, was adopted. The bill to abolish certain posts of delivery in the Mississippi Valley was passed. A bill for the collection of the revenue on the Northern, Northeastern and Northwestern frontiers was passed. The bill making appropriation for the payment of certain bounties was passed. The other business done was principally of local interest.

In the House, Mr. WICKLIFFE, of Kentucky, moved to reconsider the vote by which Gen. HUNTER'S reply to the inquiries relative to his black soldiers, was ordered to be printed, and made a speech in denunciation of the policy of arming the blacks. This gave rise to a long debate, at the close of which Mr. WICKLIFFE'S motion was negatived. The Senate's amendments to the Treasury Note bill were rejected, and a Committee of Conference was ordered. The Senate's joint resolution designating the first Tuesday in September as the day of meeting, at Chicago, of the Corporators under the Pacific Railroad act, was passed. A joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to furnish clothing to wounded and other soldiers who have lost theirs by the casualties of war, was passed. The bill prohibiting the confinement of soldiers in the District of Columbia, excepting for certain crimes, and discharging those now in confinement, was passed. The Secretary of War was called upon to inform the House whether any member of Congress has been interested in contracts since the 1st of April last. The House soon afterward adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

The National Anniversary was celebrated on Friday with much spirit and enthusiasm, not only in this locality, but in every place from which we have received advices. We give in the TIMES this morning very full accounts of the doings of the day.

By the arrival off Cape Race of the steamship Hibernian, we have advices from Europe to the 27th inst. The news is important. It is asserted that the French Emperor has resolved to send to Mexico sufficient troops to force a way to the Capital against all obstacles. A large number of French war vessels are to be concentrated in American waters, to be commanded by Admiral GRAVIERE. The excuse for this movement is the fear of what may arise out of the war in the United in the Liverpool market for the week had been 159,000 bales, and the market was much excited, prices having advanced 1d.@1¼d. per pound. Breadstuffs were quiet and steady, and provisions dull. American securities were dull, with a downward tendency. Consols were quoted at 91¼@91¾ for money.

The Cunard steamer Africa, which was seriously injured, as was supposed, by striking an iceberg off Cape Race, was four days in the dry-dock at Charlestown, Mass., for repairs, and during this time she had 84 feet of the lower depth of her keel taken out and replaced, her sternpost repaired at its junction with the keel, over 130 feet of shoe or false keel put on, several planks taken out and others put in their places, and a new rudder made. All the castings upon the sternpost were replaced by others, and the entire braces upon the rudder were also new. As she is very strongly built of the most durable materials, it was exceedingly difficult to cut away the damaged parts to make space for the new. Her keel is teak, her planking English and African oak, and the sheathing American elm, although bolted with copper. The planking on her bottom is 6½ inches thick, covered with 3½ inches thickness of American elm, which is sheathed with felt and copper.

The following additional Aides-de-Camp attached to the Staff of Maj.-Gen. FREMONT, and recently doing duty on his personal Staff, were discharged from the service on the 30th ult., viz: Cols. Anselme Albert, John T. Field, Albert Noey, J. P. C. Shanks, Robert N. Hudson, Charles Zagonyi, E. Cheseret, Philip Figyelmesy, William J. Reynolds, and Amos B. Jones; Lieut.-Cols. Augustus F. Schwer, John Pilsen, and James W. Savage; Majors Richard M. Corwine, Theodore J. Weed, Augustus Hain, D. Henry Burtnete, Adolf Carlsson, Burr Porter, Franz Krappner, Leonidas Haskell, and Edward Detshy; Captains John R. Howard, Rossiter W. Raymond, John C. Hopper, Jacob Von Cederstron, Cansky Sauer de Nordendorf, Cyrus Hamlin, Geo. Ward Nichols, Augustus Backx, Josepe Gruwe, Albert G. Sloo, Jr., Edward P. Brownson, and C. S. Szabat.

A fair demand prevailed on Saturday for the principal kinds of Breadstuffs; prices of Flour and Wheat favored sellers, while Corn closed heavily. A moderate business was transacted in Provisions, including Pork, which was decidedly lower. Cotton was in request, as were also Hay, Hops, Hides, Leather and Tallow, at uniform quotations. Whisky was depressed and declining. Sugars were pretty actively sought after. The freight engagements were less extensive. The changes in other branches of trade were unimportant. Many merchants left the City on Thursday last, not to return until the following Monday, and business movements were consequently restricted.

The Bygone Week.

The news of the last week will be memorable forever in the minds of the people and in the annals of the country. It has been a scarlet record—a record of blood and disaster, and finally of hope, on the Peninsula; a record of the most intense anxiety, of tears and bereavement, here and throughout the country. Last Sunday we had not the slightest glimpse of the dread doings of the combatants on the Chickahominy during the previous three days—not a word of the battle and retreat of Thursday—not a hint of the gory tragedy of Friday—no news of the movements of our gallant but decimated army on Saturday. The people went to church, and kept holiday as usual. The black curtain was unlifted. Many wives even then were widows, and they knew it not; many brave fellows, of whom their friends were proudly speaking, or looking joyfully forward to the day of their homeward return crowned with victorious laurels, were already sleeping their last sleep, unshrouded, by the marshy banks of the Chickahominy, or, wounded and maimed, were prisoners in the hands of the Southern rebels. But of all this New-York last Sunday knew nothing; of it all, these wives, brothers, children and friends were as ignorant as though it had not been.

On Sunday night the first telegraphic dispatch from Washington was sent to the Press. It spoke unmeaningly of the "state of affairs in front of Richmond," but what that implied no one could tell. Had our army gained a victory, and were its banners now waving on the hills around the rebel capital? So at least it looked from the tenor of the second dispatch, which arrived at a still later hour from Baltimore, and which the TIMES hastened to furnish in an extra sheet to the City public; for it spoke of our having achieved the "grandest military triumph over the enemy." With these obscure hints of something or other having taken place, the public had to be satisfied on Monday morning; but out of them they hardly knew what to make. On the afternoon of the same day news reached us by telegraph, and otherwise, that two severe battles had been fought, and that the contest was probably even then still raging—as, indeed, afterward was proved to have been the case. We learned that, subsequent to the well-contested affair of Wednesday, the enemy had again become the attacking party on Thursday, and that, after a hard day's work, our right wing had fallen back some distance; that on Friday, for the third time in three successive days, the rebels had again assumed the offensive, and after a far harder day's work than any other day's since the war began, extending from early in the morning, through the broiling heat of the day, and well into the night, our army had fallen back still further—this time crossing the Chickahominy, and assuming a new line and a new base of operations. To those who knew somewhat of the National military movements which had been in contemplation, as well as to those who were familiar with the topography of the Peninsula, and with the advantages of a line extending from the Chickahominy to the James over that which we had held for the previous two months, the movement seemed a natural and a masterly one, and was believed to be in strict accordance with the plans of Gen. MCCLELLAN. Thus things stood on Tuesday—so far as we could see in New-York. Thus they remained throughout Wednesday—though then the President's sudden call for three hundred thousand more volunteers gave us to understand that the rebel Capital had not fallen, and that there was yet work to be done which would thoroughly wake up the half-slumbering energies of the Republic. It was not until Thursday morning that the TIMES, through its army correspondents, was enabled to communicate to the nation the first legible account of what had been done by our army, and what had befallen it, from Thursday, the 26th ult., up to the last day of the month. The public then saw clearly what had been achieved and suffered, and what had been lost. There is no wonder that the news put a gloomy face upon the city, and that stocks fell. It was so different from what we had expected and hoped—so contrary to what the first telegrams had led us to believe. But though the news was bad, and its effect painful, the patriotic courage and determination of the people was still strong as ever; and they at once addressed themselves to preparation for another and a greater effort to crush out the rebellion. In the afternoon of Thursday, and on the next morning, the public learned of the great combat of the previous Monday, and were cheered by intelligence of success in the battle of Tuesday, and by the news that MCCLELLAN'S army was safe and strong on the James, and that he, in turn, was receiving reinforcements and beginning to prepare to attack the rebels. Yesterday, the news continued to improve, and this morning the reader by scanning our telegraphic columns, will see that, though our troops have just finished seven days' harder fighting than any army ever did before, they have yet courage, high spirit and confidence, and still look forward to a speedy and complete triumph over the army of the rebels, and a victorious entry into their Capital.

Thus have varied the public feelings during the week, as the news from day to day has varied—from the premature exultation of Monday morning, through the doubts of the afternoon, and the uncertainties of Tuesday, waiting with suspense through Wednesday, heavy with grief and loss on Thursday, which was partially lifted from the heart on the Fourth of July, and was changed into comparative hope as the week closed up, and as the nation sternly addressed itself to the inevitable duties now before it. It is the heaviest week we have had since the war begun. We hope we shall not have another week like it till the war closes, and few days such as those of which it has been composed.

It was the closing week of a half year in which the most wonderful series of victories had crowned our arms—in which we had been successful on almost every battlefield on which we had encountered the rebels. If it happily be followed by a few such triumphs as preceded it, it will not take long to close up the rebellion, and the present temporary despondency will soon be changed into universal cheer.

A Picture of Modern France.

There are certain axioms constantly uttered about particular peoples and their internal affairs which intelligent persons about as constantly doubt or disbelieve. A foreign observer is necessarily ignorant of every nation but his own; and even of their own people, how few can ever give us unbiased and well-considered judgments. Doubtless when educated Frenchmen hear of the tendency toward royalty or despotism in this country, they receive the dogma with as much faith as we do the accounts of revolutionary movements in France, or of the popular hatred, still supposed to exist there toward England, or of the sentimental friendship for America. We read here continually such utterly false and crude theories and statements of fact, made by European critics and observers, in regard to this country, that we have become rather skeptical as to similar statements, made with such confidence about foreign countries. It is accordingly an incredible relief to obtain, at length, a trustworthy witness with reference to the internal condition of a European Power. Above all do we value his testimony now, when the necessities and the interior affairs of our country are to determine the future relations of the North American Continent with the world.

We have the pleasure of calling attention to the singularly valuable and reliable evidence as to the state of parties in France, furnished by the private letters of a statesman, whose political judgment and deep insight into the philosophy of Government are even more valued on this side of the Atlantic than on the other—M. DE TOCQUEVILLE. Whatever this most impartial and careful thinker should assert of movements and parties constantly coming under his eye, of which he himself was part, we know must have as near the correctness and fairness of an historical judgment as can be obtained. We have tested his candor and his accuracy in regard to this country, a foreign and difficult subject to him. We may well believe him in regard to his own. These letters reach down as late as the year 1859. They show clearly that many of the popular sayings with respect to France are, so far as public affairs are concerned, true. They will serve perhaps to throw light on NAPOLEON'S present policy. It appears from these letters that among the intelligent, conservative, liberal party of France, there is the profoundest dislike of the present dynasty and a deep sadness over the destruction of French constitutional liberties. The great supports of the Government are evidently the prestige and organization of the army, and the dread among the bourgeoisie and the small land-holders of communism and revolution. The roots of the Napoleonic dynasty are plain but shallow, and take hold more of the fears among all classes, of a change, than of any enthusiasm or affection for the family. The social tendency of France is toward absolute equality, while the political current seems to set more toward a Constitutional monarchy than a Republic. This, DE TOCQUEVILLE allows, even when he declares his preference for the latter. Even the old attraction of "French glory" has plainly lost its charm. The Crimean war was not popular, and the passion of all classes is for material good. France wants rest. We learn from this philosophic observer, whose most intimate relations were with England, that the popular dislike of England is still intense in France, and not the least diminished by the mean cringing of the English Press to the Emperor during the alliance, while the small force and the disgraceful disorganization of the British army in the Crimean campaign had inspired the French people with contempt. No war could now, he says, be more popular than a war with England. Whatever popular danger NAPOLEON has to fear, is evidently from the former dynasties on the French throne, rather than from the Radicals.

With these most careful and most trustworthy statements in regard to France, in our view, may we not put more credit in the various rumors which have filled the air so long? It becomes less improbable that the Emperor is regarding the French Princes with deep distrust, and that their reception into our army, and their gallant conduct here, has rendered him cold to our National cause. The fears of England also, are seen to be less unreasonable, and the gigantic preparations now in progress on the French coast may well arouse her anxiety. On the whole, DE TOCQUEVILLE'S private sketches are reassuring to the American mind. We behold a revolutionary throne not too firmly founded—a common people devoted to the pursuit of comfort and wealth, and a nation whose only warlike passion is directed toward the Power from whose hostility we have most to fear. From such a people and Government we can hardly expect a seven years' war on this Continent, for the sake of establishing a French Bonapartist monarchy.

Hear the Other Side.

Were we to suppose an intelligent mandarin and a cultivated Brahmin to visit Europe at the present time, and to correct their previous ideas of American institutions and character by the light of leading French and English newspapers, the impressions they would receive would be whimsically different from those we have been accustomed to entertain, and to teach to our children. They would discover that our Government, founded in wrong, and adroitly adjusted so as to produce the largest amount of misery and suffering to the greatest number of people, outstripped in tyranny and wickedness any that even their own extensive experience could parallel. They would learn that a few artful persons by conspiring to keep the price of labor very low as compared to fortunate Europe, had contrived to divert the bulk of the earnings of the masses to their own overflowing coffers. They would realize how, by dint of heavy taxes, large standing armies, an expensive system of Government, a vast array of aristocratic sinecures, and a stupendous scheme of imposts to meet the luxurious demands of political drones, we had ingeniously managed to evade that first principle of an enlightened Government which aims to dispense the greatest happiness to the greatest possible number. To them WASHINGTON would appear as a mercenary adventurer, FRANKLIN a scientific charlatan, and ABRAHAM LINCOLN a designing monster of unheard-of and atrocious wickedness. They would understand, furthermore, by what entirely magnanimous and generous motives English and French leaders of opinion are actuated in their treatment of the "American question." They would see how truly anxious those leaders are for the happiness and prosperity of the United Republic; and would become convinced that the warmest desire of their hearts is to see the civil war ended by a happy reunion of all the States under the old Stars and Stripes. It would become evident to our Oriental friends that nothing would be so supremely disgusting to NAPOLEON or PALMERSTON as to see two weak Anglo-Saxon nations on this continent exhausting each other by chronic warfare, and either of which France or England could bully at pleasure, rather than one powerful Commonwealth, fast getting into a position to keep both in order.

The Brahmin and the Mandarin would unquestionably imbibe these curious notions at the outset; but it is probable that neither their sagacity nor the strength of their stomachs would enable them to retain them for any great length of time. Their astuteness would, ere long, enable them to detect that the characteristics we have mentioned were those of the nations they were visiting, whose leading spirits were artfully striving to throw discredit on Democratic institutions, in order to make their people contented with their own. They would soon find, too, that the masses of those people themselves, who have no spokesmen in Press or Forum, entertain opinions about America decidedly different from those of their rulers; which opinions, however temporarily suppressed, they may in good time promulgate, in a manner which, to those rulers, is likely to be more summary than agreeable. They would see what we of the United States are becoming daily persuaded of: that although Imperial France and Aristocratic England may not be our friends, yet that Democratic France and Free England are most unequivocally so: and that, numerically speaking, the latter constitute a very large majority. Thus our Eastern savans, like all the rest of the world, would gain a true knowledge of the facts at issue by a little patience and a little time. They would find, like most of us, that there are two sides to every story; and that one is very good until the other is told. Fortified by this additional experience, they would wend their way toward the rising sun, thus enabled to point another moral and adorn another tale, for the delectation of the moribund youths at home, who are poring over the wisdom of CONFUCIUS and of BRAHMA.

Reform of the Medical Staff.

Now that the President has called for three hundred thousand more troops, of which New-York will be expected to furnish, probably, about fifty thousand, it is to be hoped that some little care will be bestowed upon furnishing decent medical attendance for the sick and wounded. It is notorious that our brave fellows in the field have, since the commencement of the war, suffered severely for want of medical officers enough to care for them properly, and from the utter incompetency, in many cases, of the persons appointed as Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons in the different regiments. If the facts in the case could all be made known, the public mind would be shocked beyond measure at the state of things which has existed and still exists. Quacks of all sorts, apothecary's boys, and even barbers and others, wholly destitute of professional knowledge, actually hold the posts of Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons to regiments, and even of Medical Directors of brigades. How many deaths and useless mutilations have occurred in consequence, it would be difficult to estimate; but that the number is large, admits of no doubt.

One or two illustrations will suffice, out of hundreds which might be given. In one instance, a medical officer, being advised by a physician not in the service, to use "Dover's Powder" in a particular case, did not know what it was, and declared, after looking among his stores, that the Government did not furnish it, though he had an abundant supply. It was labeled with the proper official name, which was incomprehensible to him. Another surgeon decides not to administer because his patients with that disease "all die anyhow," and therefore he is determined not to make any more requisitions for those essential articles. In the field of surgery the greatest atrocities have been committed. Limbs amputated, which should never have been touched; where the operation was necessary, flaps made on the wrong side of the limb; in one recent instance, a leg taken off at the hip joint, because a ball was suspected of having penetrated the joint, which proved afterward to have been entirely uninjured. (This latter operation is now, we are informed, wholly abandoned by surgeons, experience having shown it to be almost invariably fatal.)

Now, without stopping to discuss the causes of this sad state of affairs, we simply desire to say that it is incumbent on the authorities, both State and National, to prevent the extension of the evil and to apply the remedy, so far as possible, to existing abuses. Congress has authorized the employment of one additional assistant surgeon for each regiment. If the proper steps are taken, these places may all be filled by thoroughly competent medical men. In this way each regiment would have at least one good medical officer. The new Surgeon-General, Dr. HAMMOND, commands the entire confidence of the medical profession and the public, and may be relied upon to do whatever lies in his power to bring his department to the highest state of efficiency. It remains for the State authorities to see that their part is properly performed. The only way to accomplish this is for the Governor to appoint a proper Medical Board to examine all candidates for the posts of surgeon and assistant surgeon, and to commission no one hereafter who cannot stand the ordeal of a thorough examination and obtain a certificate to that effect. We hope to see this done without delay.

Railroad Facilities to Washington.

There is a popular outcry for better railroad facilities and a rate of forty or fifty miles an hour, between New-York and Washington. That every person, package and letter transported between the metropolis and the capital of America, should, in this steam-propelled age, be dragged for two hours around the streets of Philadelphia and Baltimore by horses, and boated across bridged rivers, when the express trains between London and Edinburgh, for instance, accomplish the journey of 400 miles in ten hours, is quite incompatible with the spirit and intentions of the people. Whereupon Congress is called upon to remedy the evil by legislation, and a score of schemes are urged—schemes diverse enough in engineering demerit, certainly, but irregularly alike, in that they are all based upon pecuniary aid from the Government, and that they all propose to furnish a higher speed and cheaper fares, with a less cost for road and equipment, than any present lines. Now, any suggestion other than to heap obstacles and punishment upon the local monopoly, has invariably been denounced as sympathy in its behalf; but this treatment has never remedied its abuses, and never will. It is simply kicking against the goads. Accommodation is what the public want, and, until they take comprehensive views of the case and act upon them coolly, with nothing but their great want in view, they will only make matters worse.

In the first place, what is a probable result of a rival line? A chapter in the history of the present line will answer. By the old railroad and water route from Philadelphia to Baltimore the fare was $2. When the new road was built a coalition became necessary, as neither could live on half the business at this price, and the fare was raised to $3. That the Camden and Amboy can be made to accommodate the whole Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington traffic, is evident from the fact that it has done so during the past extraordinary year, without a large increase of equipment. Now is it very likely that a rival road could afford to do half the business that a first-class road can accommodate, at a greater speed and a smaller price? Is it not equally probable that after a season of ruinous rivalry the two lines would reduce both speed and accommodation? Neither could raise the fare, indeed, for that is limited by State laws. But it may be imagined that a new line would avoid transhipment at the intermediate cities. The fact is, that this outrageous delay is compelled by the State authorities, and is beyond the control of the National Government, except in the matter of troops and mails. It is not probable that any Company will build a railway over, under or around Philadelphia and Baltimore, for the simple purpose of carrying a baggage car by steam, while the residue of the train passed through by horse-power. The present line has been praying these many years for the privilege of going around these cities by steam. It is not at all certain that the State authorities would grant this right to any new company, if perchance they should grow civilized enough to yield to the persistent prayer of the old. In that event, a new line would be a dead loss. Again, it is proposed to construct the new railway for $30,000 per mile. It is, then, worth about half as much as the present line. Its track must be deprived of ballast and laid with light cheap iron; its engines, cars and bridges—the latter are very numerous—must be of an inferior quality, and not only must safety be risked, but cost of maintainance must be doubled. This is not all: the old and rich companies would at once, with a moderate expenditure, improve their own roads, and thus compel the new line either to abandon the business, or else to earn, at the most, a share of it, at the cost of a largely increased capital.

One of our cotemporaries undertakes to dispose of another branch of the question, substantially as follows: three cents a mile charged on the present line for a speed of 25 miles an hour is outrageous because the fare on the New-York Central is two cents, and certain trains in Europe run at 40 miles an hour. The proposed remedy is to carry passengers between New-York and Washington at two cents, including State and City taxes, and at 40 miles an hour, over a road which must, of course, have a double track for safety, and which, including viaducts over or additional lines outside of two large cities intervening, shall cost $30,000 to $50,000 per mile. all of which is to be such a good investment as to warrant the use of the Government credit. The facts that the New-York Central lines referred to charge nearly four cents a mile for high speed, over a track that is run cheaply because it has been constructed at a cost unprecedented in America, and in a country where money, labor and iron are cheap, render any further consideration of this topic unnecessary. It betrays either weakness or ignorance to insist on 40 miles an hour, at 2 cents, because they travel at this rate in Europe for twice the money, and upon rival roads, too, so that they have all possible benefit of "opposition to monopoly." If Americans want to ride 40 miles in an hour, they will have to pay for it, as Europeans do. People who understand this often ask why the railroad companies do not provide a few exceedingly fast trains, at paying rates? One good and sufficient reason is, that State legislators, not content to allow the laws of trade to work out their natural results, have fixed a maximum fare by law, and the people have to suffer for it.

Now, we most sincerely hope to see between New-York and Washington, a better railroad than has ever yet been built in this country, but we are satisfied that the methods now urged upon Congress would not only afford no new conveniences, but prove disastrous to their financial backers. The foregoing considerations have evidently shaped all petitions for legislation on the subject. Do the projectors of a rival railway, that promises to pay, ask money of the authorities? Are they not, on the contrary, only too glad to buy the mere right to build and occupy? Does not capital always watch for and seize upon such promises to pay? But when a company of speculators and politicians beg not only the privilege but the credit of the Government, the reason why the Government should avoid the scheme is perfectly evident.

But what will avoid the present delay an inconvenience? If the Government has the right to allow any railway to convey passengers in a manner contrary to the laws of the State traversed, then let it afford those privileges at once to the present line—a practically level and direct line, which is, excepting these statute delays, run with a tolerable speed, and which, in persistent effort to secure better accommodation from the local authorities, and in some recent improvements in speed, has not evinced that utter indifference to public convenience so generally attributed to the great monopoly. But if the Government has no such prerogative, let it purchase from the inhabitants the right to advance civilization, as PENN did from their ancestors.

Spain and Mexico.

While the grand drama now enacting in the United States still arrests the attention of Christendom, another is rising to the grandeur of a spectacle worthy of the world's deepest interest. Subsidiary, but scarcely secondary to the struggle in progress on the soil of our country, is the attentat of monarchical intervention on the soil of our neighbor—Mexico. One brief year which has seen this Union of Republican States plunged into the depth of danger, and reviving in remarkable strength, has, also, seen the fleets and armies of a most powerful monarchical coalition hurled against the breast of a weak and distracted American Republic, to be there dashed to pieces, first, by dissension, and then by positive military defeat. Who does not remember the pomp and circumstance with which the flotilla of Spain, bearing her choicest legions, led by her most distinguished General, sailed from the port of Havana, a few months ago, for Vera Cruz? The Cuban papers swelled to bursting with the pompous announcements that heralded the departure of Her Catholic Majesty's forces, and the turgid predictions of what they were to achieve.

More to the point, but not less arrogant, were the declarations of the British journals, in predicting the chastisement of Mexico. The French Press simply spoke of the conquest of that "geographical expression," and the assumption of its sceptre by some European royal stripling, as a fait accompli—a thing settled and decided the instant France decreed it. The wand of Time has made a monthly circuit or two in the political atmosphere, and behold the coalition dispelled—England and Spain hastily shaking the dust of Mexico from their feet, and France pressing onward to lose, on some inglorious hillside the grandly plucked at Magenta and Solferino, at the Alma and at Inkermann, from the brows of the proudest and mightiest military empires on earth. But in the latter instances France fought with the sword of liberty in her hand; in Mexico, she had flung aside that invincible weapon, to brandish the rod and the scourge that were to coerce a freeborn people. Thus far, then, this huge conspiracy against our neighbor and us, against the new system of American Government, and against Republican principles, has utterly failed. We and the other American States have received solemn warning in due time. The lesson is comprehensive. We have been taught that no abstinence on our part from interference in European affairs, no professions of "distinguished consideration," no deference to transatlantic opinion, no courteous subserviency, avails to keep off the hands of the "Balance of Power." If Mexico has been delinquent, it was a coincidence worthy of note that the hour of danger to this Confederacy should have been the one selected for her punishment; and it was still stranger that our negotiations with her as a coterminous State should have been made the pretext for remonstrance by the Power which persists in her invasion. If these coincidences cannot be readily explained, we have the right to infer that the coalition being based upon a principle hostile to us, may be revived again at any moment, through the tortuous channels of diplomacy, to whose evolutions and transformations, where liberty is to be destroyed, the tricks of the most accomplished prestidigitateur seem trifling.

Spain, the hand first put forward in this affair, quickly as it has been withdrawn, is yet too near the cave of the European Magician, and too much in his control, to resist his determined entreaties, and England is by no means prepared to break up the entente cordiale.

It is worth while to note what is now taking place in this matter toward a fresh change in the programme, which will probably be made to embrace the affairs of the United States as well as of Mexico. Some reliable letters from Madrid state positively that Marshal O'DONNELL and the British Minister have frequent and cordial interviews; that the Epoca, which is secretly inspired by Mr. ALEXANDER MON, is the only Spanish paper that sustained the candidature of Archduke MAXIMILIAN for the Mexican throne, and is therefore regarded with great dislike in Ministerial circles, nay even at Court; that the El Reino publishes a letter from Paris, said to have been written at the instigation of the Queen Mother and Duc de Rianzares, declaring that, from the first, the Spanish Government proposed the Infante, Don SEBAS-

...Emperor having declared ..., while ... favored the elevation of the ... of Montpensier to the throne of Mexico, he could not so regard a Prince who had fought against ISABELLA II. and liberal institutions. This ... of the Infanta, LUISA FERNANDA, by ... NAPOLEON, is said to have been rejected by O'DONNELL out of resentment against the Queen, MARIA CHRISTINA, whom he suspected of having worked at Paris on behalf of the Duchess.

This little glimpse of Court intrigues throws light, as such investigations ever have done, on the true causes of an apparent disagreement between the high contracting parties. It but needs now a firm, decided and intelligent course on the part of this Government to prevent the renewal of the coalition, and to secure not only itself, but its American neighbors, against any further attempt to intermeddle on this Continent. The people stand ready to support any proper action of the Administration.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Present Position of the Army of the Potomac.

Sick and Wounded Soldiers Arrived.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 5.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

A distinguished member of Gen. MCCLELLAN'S Staff, who has visited Washington, gives renewed assurances of the perfect safety of the position of the army, and its increased efficiency from a better base and with the cooperation of the gunboats.

THE PRINCE DE JOINVILLE.

The President had, to-day, a cordial interview with Prince de Joinville, who witnessed the several battles before Richmond. After it was held, he authorized a leading Republican Member of the House to make it generally known that the Prince bore ample testimony to the skill and success of Gen. MCCLELLAN. The efforts of the malcontents to renew a distrust of Gen. MCCLELLAN, and then to compromise a proposed removal of him and STANTON, will get no popular or official support in Washington.

Agreeably to a programme made a year ago, the Prince de JOINVILLE, Count de PARIS, and Duc de CHARTRES are about to leave for England to attend the World's Fair—hence their separation from the army of the Potomac, where, as members of the staff of Gen. MCCLELLAN, they have participated in every battle before Richmond up to and including Monday last.

SICK AND WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

The steamers Louisiana, Vanderbilt and Commodore have arrived at Washington from Harrison's Bar, James River, bringing about eighteen hundred of the sick and wounded from Gen. MCCLELLAN'S army. Those on the Vanderbilt were principally from New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania and Michigan Regiments. The hotels contain many officers, who were injured more or less in the recent battles, and they are surrounded by eager crowds listening to the stories of the fight. The wounded brought hither are placed in the hospitals of the city and vicinity. The Government has made extensive preparations for their arrival, and the citizens generally manifest a lively interest in their welfare.

SECRETARY SEWARD RETURNED.

Secretary SEWARD has returned to Washington.

COMMODORE POORE.

Commodore POORE writes from New-Haven, date of 3d: "My health is rapidly improving, and I hope soon to be afloat again."

FROM THE SOUTH CAROLINA COAST.

Commodore DUPONT, under date of June 28, incloses another interesting report from Lieut. Commanding RHIND, of further operations in North Edisto River, saying that on the 21st inst., with the Crusader and the Planter, piloted by ROBERT SMALL, he ran up North Edisto River into Wadmelaw Sound, as far as Simon's Bluff, which is on the mainland. The rebels had a camp there and some artillery, but made no use of the latter. A few broadsides from the Crusader dispersed the enemy, and Lieutenant-Commanding RHIND, on landing with a company of the Fifty-third Volunteers under command of Capt. BENNETT, met with no resistance. About thirty tents and some cabins used as quarters were fired and a few muskets brought away. We had no casualties. Col. WHITE, of the Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania Regiment, commanding the post there, and his officers and men cooperated with the expedition.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Yesterday morning 345 prisoners of war were sent from the old Capital prison under a strong guard to Fort Delaware, Pennsylvania. The prison now contains less than seventy-five prisoners.

COL. BLAIR TO RAISE A BRIGADE.

Upon the call of the President, for 300,000 additional troops, Col. FRANK P. BLAIR, Chairman of the Military Committee of the House of Representatives, was requested to proceed at once to Missouri, to raise a brigade. The request was promptly responded to, and Col. BLAIR leaves for St. Louis as soon as he can close up important business now before his Committee. In the meantime, Col. BLAIR has telegraphed to officers at St. Louis, whom he is authorized to select to proceed to raise companies and regiments. Col. BLAIR offers to raise two brigades, the command of one to be tendered to Gen. JAMES JACKSON, of Kentucky.

NOT CONFIRMED.

Col. JAMES S. JACKSON, a member of the House from Kentucky, has not yet been confirmed as Brigadier-General. He was Chief of Cavalry in Gen. BUELL'S command, who considers him one of the best cavalry officers in the Western army, and recommends him as a Brigadier. As soon as Congress adjourns, which it is supposed will be in the course of a week, Col. JACKSON will return to his command, whether it be a regiment or a brigade.

ORGANIZATION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The new Department of Agriculture, authorized by recent act of Congress, has been organized. The rooms heretofore occupied by the Agricultural Division of the Patent Office have been set apart for the use of the Department. ISAAC NEWTON, the Commissioner of Agriculture, is from Pennsylvania. The appointment of Chief Clerk has been given to RICHARD C. MCCORMICK, of Long Island. The law creating the new Department directs—

"That it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture to acquire and preserve in his Department all information concerning agriculture which he can obtain by means of books and correspondence, and by practical and scientific experiments, (accurate records of which experiments shall be kept in his office,) by the collection of statistics, and by any other appropriate means within his power; to collect, as he may be able, new and valuable seeds and plants; to test by cultivation the value of such of them as may require such tests; to propagate such as may be worthy of propagation, and to distribute them among agriculturists. He shall annually make a general report in writing of his acts to the President and to Congress, in which he may recommend the publication of papers forming parts of or accompanying his report, which report shall also contain an account of all moneys received and expended by him. He shall also make special reports on particular subjects whenever required to do so by the President or either House of Congress, or when he shall think the subject in his charge requires it. He shall receive and have charge of all the property of the agricultural division of the Patent Office in the Department of the Interior, including the fixtures and property of the propagating garden. He shall direct and superintend the expenditure of all money appropriated by Congress to the department, and render accounts thereof, and also of all money heretofore appropriated for agriculture and remaining unexpended. And said Commissioner may send and receive through the mail, free of charge, all communications pertaining, and exclusively relating to the business of his department, not exceeding in weight thirty-two ounces."

In the absence of the Chief Clerk his duties are to be performed by the Chief Clerk. The Department promises to be much more efficient than under the old organization. The President has shown a lively interest in its establishment—as it was suggested by him in his last annual message.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Friday, July 4.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) presented a petition, asking that the President be requested to call on all loyal persons to return to their allegiance, and to report themselves within the lines of the army.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) offered a resolution that the Secretary of War be requested to transmit to the Senate the official report of Col. CANBY in regard to military operations in New-Mexico, especially that of the battle of March last.

Mr. RICE, of Minnesota, (Rep.,) objected to its present consideration.

Laid over.

Mr. POWELL, of Kentucky, (States' Rights,) moved to take up the bill abolishing the franking privilege.

Mr. RICE objected to its being taken up.

On the question being taken, no quorum was found.

Mr. CLARK, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms request the attendance of absentees.

On motion of Mr. KING, of New-York, (Rep.,) the Senate adjourned, having been in session less than half an hour.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 5.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) called up the resolution calling upon the Secretary of War for official reports from Col. CANBY in regard to operations in New-Mexico. Adopted.

Mr. HALE, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) introduced a bill repealing the act requiring the bonds of Paymasters and Assistant Paymasters to be approved by the Judge or Attorney of the District in which they reside. Passed.

Mr. CHANDLER, of Michigan, (Rep.,) from the Committee on Commerce, reported back the House bill authorizing the appointment of a Deputy Collector of Customs at Chincoteague Island, Va. Passed.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the same Committee, reported back the bill to abolish certain ports of delivery in the Mississippi Valley. Passed.

Mr. CHANDLER, from the same Committee, reported a bill for the collection of the revenue on the Northern, Northeastern and Northwestern frontier.

The bill provides that vessels in the coasting trade shall file a manifest with the Collector, with the duties thereon, and authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint special agents at the reopened Southern ports. Passed.

Mr. LANE, of Kansas, (Rep.,) offered a resolution that the President be requested to inform the Senate the amounts due to the State of Kansas from the several Departments of the Government, with the view of applying the same on the taxes due from said State. Adopted.

Mr. WADE, of Ohio, (Rep.,) called up the bill providing for certain post roads. The bill provides for a bridge across the Ohio River at Steubenville.

Mr. COWAN, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) moved to amend so as to make the draw of the proposed bridge three hundred feet instead of two hundred and seventy feet.

This was discussed at some length by Messrs. WADE, COWAN and COLLAMER.

On motion of Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, (Rep.,) the bill was postponed, and the bill making appropriation for the payment of certain bounties was taken up and passed.

On motion of Mr. HARLAN, of Iowa, (Rep.,) the bill concerning certain public lands granted the State of Iowa, was taken up and passed.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported a bill in relation to schools for colored children in Washington and Georgetown. Passed.

On motion of Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, (Rep.,) the bill in relation to election of Representatives to Congress from single districts was taken up, and, after debate, was postponed.

On motion of Mr. FOSTER, of Connecticut, (Rep.,) the General Pension bill was taken up. Several amendments of the Committee were concurred in.

Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 5.

Mr. WICKLIFFE, of Kentucky, (Union,) moved to reconsider the vote by which Major-Gen. HUNTER'S reply to the inquiries as to the organization of negro regiments, was ordered to be printed.

Mr. WICKLIFFE addressed the House on the subject. Gen. HUNTER, he said, instead of organizing and parading negroes, ought to have prepared his troops to prevent their retreat from James Island. It was miserable policy to muster runaway negroes into the service. If twenty millions of freemen are not able to suppress a rebellion of six millions of white men, let this acknowledgment at once be made. The recommendation to the Border Slave States to emancipate their slaves, and the design to pass confiscation bills have not scared the South. One hundred and ninety-six thousand more troops than the law prescribes have been enlisted. He insisted that the number should be limited, and the military arm restrained from going beyond the statute. He wished, however, that we had more troops duly authorized, to be placed where they ought to be. The Secretary of War ought to have rebuked Gen. HUNTER for his saucy and impudent letter, and removed him for having undertaken to enlist negro soldiers without sanction of law.

Mr. WICKLIFFE said that to-day he received an anonymous letter from some scoundrel, inclosing a copy of HUNTER'S letter, telling him to "read this, and smoke it in your pipe." He wanted his brother members to take a whiff. It was the duty of every head of a Department to rebuke a subordinate who, with reference to any legitimate inquiry, takes occasion to indulge in unjust and insulting criticisms. This was the ground of his complaint, he having introduced the resolution to which HUNTER'S letter was a reply. The negroes were naturally afraid of guns—give them John Brown pikes and bowie knives, if you intend to carry on a war of murder and devastation in the South. He had intended to bring one of JOHN BROWN'S pikes here, thinking the House might adopt it as a fit instrument for South Carolina blacks.

Mr. MCKNIGHT, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) regretted that Mr. WICKLIFFE had just agitated the negro question, believing it was, at this critical juncture, injurious to the public interests.

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Union,) said that no man condemned more severely than he did the letter of Gen. HUNTER and the system inaugurated by that General in arming negroes. It was an outrage on humanity. He shrunk from it. The House ought to be forever ashamed of its conduct, the other day, when HUNTER'S letter was read. The demonstration on the part of certain members approached to buffoonery, and was disgraceful to the American Congress.

Messrs. RIDDLE, of Pennsylvania, and COLFAX, of Indiana, called the gentleman to order.

The Speaker reminded Mr. MALLORY that he was transcending the rules.

Mr. MALLORY asked pardon. He differed from his colleague (WICKLIFFE) as to the Secretary of War. He had an abiding confidence in that officer, and that the conduct of Gen. HUNTER would be repudiated, for the following reasons: Two or three weeks ago he had business with the Secretary. When he was about leaving the Department the Secretary called him back, and folding over the date and signature of a letter, showed him that an officer had asked authority to raise a regiment of blacks. The Secretary inquired what answer ought to be given, to which he (MALLORY) replied: "if you will allow me to dictate an answer, I would say, emphatically, NO." The Secretary rejoined, that he had not only done that, but had ordered the officer's arrest. He therefore repeated to many gentlemen that the charges that the Secretary of War sanctioned the recruiting of blacks, were false.

Mr. KELLOGG, of Illinois, (Rep.)—Was the arrest for making that suggestion?

Mr. MALLORY—That was the impression I received. If there were other reasons, they were not stated.

Mr. RICHARDSON, of Illinois, (Opp.,) inquired whether, in Mr. MALLORY'S judgment, the Secretary, to be consistent, ought not to dismiss HUNTER.

Mr. MALLORY would wait till the Secretary had time to consider the question.

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) remarked that he agreed with Mr. WICKLIFFE in finding fault with the conduct of the war. There were many things which did not meet his approbation. He did not approve of setting generals in sympathy with slaveholders at the head of our armies, and of their conduct, under express orders, in pursuing and returning the fugitives of traitors. He could not consent to that portion of the conduct of the war which set our armies to watch over the property of rebel soldiers, rather than allow it to be occupied by our own troops, while the sick and wounded are placed in swamps, filled with miasma, weakening, and thus unfitting them to meet the enemy.

Mr. KELLOGG, of Illinois—Does the gentleman make the charge about the conduct of the war, or of the President, or Secretary of War, or only against the Generals in the field?

Mr. STEVENS—I intend to place the blame exactly where I think I may. As these things have been perpetrated under the express or implied rebuke from the appointing power, I desire the House, and the world to understand where the responsibility rests.

Mr. KELLOGG—Does the gentleman charge this on the Administration?

Mr. STEVENS—I charge it on the management of the war, and the different branches of the Administration. I do not mean to flatter. I believe the President honest, but being of a yielding disposition, has fallen under the malignant influence of Kentucky counsels, and therefore has adopted the policy I rebuke.

Mr. MALLORY—Does the gentleman attempt to ridicule the Kentucky Delegation?

Mr. STEVENS—I don't say so; nor do I mean any gentleman of this House.

Mr. MALLORY—Then the gentlemen intended to perpetrate a joke. These are powers behind the throne greater than the throne itself.

Mr. STEVENS remarked, in reply to Mr. MALLORY, that from the communication he had with the Secretary of War he (STEVENS) did not think the Secretary held any such doctrine as that attributed by the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. MALLORY did not consider the interview between him and the Secretary of War confidential or private. It was in the presence of two of his colleagues, and therefore he had no hesitation in repeating what had occurred.

Mr. STEVENS wished the Secretary had replied by saying: "I have sent arms and clothing South with orders to supply loyal men there." If this answer had been given it would have been in accordance with what he supposed were the Secretary's sentiments. The employment of blacks was but the carrying out of the usage of all civilized nations. Nothing could be produced from history to show contrary. The usage was to liberate slaves and take them into service to defeat the enemy. During the Revolution the blacks were used by WASHINGTON as soldiers, and JACKSON did the same thing.

Mr. LOVEJOY, of Illinois, (Rep.,) (by permission of Mr. STEVENS) occupied the floor for a short time, and read from the proclamations of WASHINGTON and JACKSON in support of Mr. STEVENS' position, and to show the noble enthusiasm of colored soldiers impelling to great deeds.

Mr. SEDGWICK, of New-York, (Rep.,) also read, from a paper furnished him by the Librarian of the State of New-York, to the effect that Spain, Portugal, Brazil, Great Britain, Turkey, etc., employed soldiers, without regard to color, including the mustering of blacks into service, as highly important and desirable. He had been endeavoring for weeks past to introduce a bill for this purpose. In reply to Mr. BINGHAM he said he provided in the bill for liberty to all thus employed.

Mr. STEVENS was thankful to Mr. SEDGWICK for the portion of history he had produced. He had been told by a venerable Senator from Vermont, who had seen them, that a regiment of colored soldiers were employed on the northern frontiers during the late war with Great Britain. It was the duty of the Government to follow the policy inaugurated by Gen. HUNTER, that gallant and sagacious soldier who now commands our armies in South Carolina. You cannot put down insurrection till you remove the cause. You cannot conquer the South as long as you permit slaves to cultivate Southern soil during the hot summer months. He was for arming the slave population of the South in this war of freedom against traitors and rebels. He would not resort to this as an emancipation or abolition measure, but as the means of putting down the rebellion. He referred to the Methodists, Baptists, Old and New School Presbyterians, &c., as having conscientiously and solemnly expressed their belief that slavery is the cause of the rebellion, and its continuance.

Mr. MALLORY—I am as anxious as the gentleman can be, and I think from the stronger motive of self-interest, to put down the rebellion.

Mr. STEVENS—I don't doubt it. We only differ in opinion as to the means.

Mr. MALLORY—I think the slaves of Southern rebels should be used, as our armies advance, in all menial service, such as boating and assisting on fortifications. My reasons against arming them are: 1. When armed, they would be turned loose against those who had been their masters; their practice will be indiscriminate slaughter of men, women and children; 2. You cannot, for your lives, make of slaves an army whose services in the field will pay the expense of organizing them. One shot from a cannon would disperse thirty thousand of them.

Mr. STEVENS, quickly responding; then they will do no injury to the rebels who fight them. I am for employing them against their masters. I suppose the gentleman wants to employ them in menial service, and after the war return them to their masters under the fugitive slave law. In further remarks he said he was for putting them in the front of the battle. He would raise a hundred thousand to morrow. They are not barbarians, and are as much calculated to be human as any other class of people. It was false to say they would not make good soldiers. He would seize every foot of land and dollar of property, and apply them to the uses of war as our armies go along. He would plant in the South military colonies, and sell the land to soldiers of freedom, holding the heritage of traitors, and building up institutions without the recognition of Slavery.

On motion of Mr. WASHBURNE, the House, by 61 against 26, laid on the table the motion of Mr. WICKLIFFE to reconsider the vote by which Gen. HUNTER'S letter was ordered to be printed.

The House non-concurred in the Senate's amendments to the United States Note bill, and a Committee of Conference was ordered.

The House passed the Senate joint resolution designating the first Tuesday in September as the time of meeting in Chicago of the corporators under the Pacific Railroad act.

Mr. HALL introduced a joint resolution, which was passed, authorizing the Secretary of War to furnish clothing to wounded and other soldiers, as a substitute for that lost by the casualties of war.

The House passed the bill reported from the Judiciary Committee, prohibiting the confinement of soldiers in the District of Columbia, except in punishment of certain crimes, and discharging those now there.

A resolution was adopted, calling on the Secretary of War to imform the House whether any member of Congress has been interested in contracts since the 1st of April last.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

Mr. HUTCHINS, of Ohio, (Rep.,) replied to the speech of his colleague, (Mr. COX,) heretofore delivered, relative to Ohio matters, involving the free negro question. Adjourned.

NEWS FROM PORT ROYAL.

Arrival of the Ocean Queen and the Arago.

The Evacuation of James Island Completed.

ADDITIONAL LIST OF WOUNDED.

The U. S. transport Ocean Queen, Capt. TERRY, from Port Royal July 1, arrived here yesterday.

There was nothing of interest at Port Royal. The U. S. troops had evacuated James Island and arrived at Port Royal. The U. S. transport Arago was to sail July 2, with the sick and wounded, from James Island, for New-York.

The Ocean Queen brings the following passengers:

Col. Barton, Col. Frazer, Lieut. J. H. Blauvelt, Lieut. J. H. Evans, Lieut. W. S. Beyerly, J. C. Morris, H. H. Flanly, G. H. Osborn, S. F. Barr, H. E. Jones, Lieut. Nichols.

The steamship Arago, from Port Royal at 2 P. M. on July 2, arrived this morning. She brings passengers and the mails, and 40 bales of Sea Island cotton.

Among the passengers there are 80 wounded officers, non-commissioned officers and privates.

On July 3, 1:30 P. M., Sergeant MILTON BARROWS, of the Eighth Michigan State Volunteers, died from wounds received at the battle of June 16, on James Island, S. C., and was buried.

Sick and Wounded from James Island.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 6.

The steamer Commodore arrived to-day, bringing about 800 sick and wounded from James Island, S. C. Two other vessels are soon expected from there.

IMPORTANT FROM THE MISSISSIPPI.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF VICKSBURGH.

Preliminary Bombardment of the Place.

The City Shelled by the Mortar Fleet and Partially Destroyed.

THE DESTRUCTION TO BE COMPLETED.

NEW-MADRID, Saturday, July 5.

Vicksburgh is ours.

No particulars yet.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF VICKSBURGH.

CAIRO, Saturday, July 5.

The ram Monarch brings news from Vicksburgh to the 28th of June.

On Thursday, Com. PORTER'S fleet commenced to shell the upper battery below the town. This continued all day without any result.

The shelling was renewed on Friday, and in the afternoon the fire was directed on the town, over which the shells were seen plainly to burst. This continued until 4 o'clock, when the firing ceased.

During the bombardment the rebel batteries replied feebly. Their firing was inaccurate.

Half an hour after the cessation of the bombardment, the rebel water battery opened on our mortar fleet, which replied until the battery ceased firing.

At 8 o'clock in the evening a fire was opened from the entire fleet on the town, and it was continued for an hour.

The next morning, at 4 o'clock, the bombardment was renewed, during which eight of Commodore FARRAGUT'S vessels passed the batteries, without serious damage.

The city must have been damaged greatly, as conflagrations were seen in numerous parts of it.

We are informed on indisputable authority that five thousand negroes have been ordered by Gen. BUTLER to work on the canal across the Bend, on which Vicksburgh or its remains are now situated.

The channel of the Mississippi will thus be changed and Vicksburgh will become an inland town hereafter.

Seven hundred more shells have been ordered from New-Orleans to reduce the remains of the place to ashes.

LATE NEWS FROM MEMPHIS.

Movements of Guerrillas—The Rebel Conscription—Suffering Among the Inhabitants Below.

MEMPHIS, Friday, July 4.

At Halena, Ark., there is a bank of guerrillas, numbering 2,000, threatening the people with cotton burning and a general destruction of property.

In consideration of this fact, Gen. GRANT has issued orders that wherever loss is sustained by the Government, collections shall be made by the seizure of a sufficient amount of personal property from persons in the immediate vicinity sympathizing with the rebellion, to remunerate the Government losses. Persons acting as guerrillas will not be treated as prisonerf of war.

The Mississippi River north of Vicksburgh is reported to be lined with men trying to escape conscription.

Federal boats are continually hailed by persons wanting to be taken aboard with their cotton.

The people everywhere are represented as suffering the greatest hardships and distress.

On an island below White River, 2,500 men who have fled from conscription are united against their oppressors.

The Avalanche appeared this morning as a "bulletin." The proprietors and editors say this change was made in accordance with a late order of the Provost-Marshal, that no paper shall be issued whose editors would not take the oath.

The ram Monarch met the fleet of Capt. DAVIS' one hundred miles this side of Vicksburgh.

IMPORTANT FROM CORINTH.

An Arrival from Mobile—Preparations for the Defence of that City—Bragg at Tupello with Fifty Thousand Men, &c.

CORINTH, Saturday, July 5.

A former employe of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad has arrived here by the way of Tupello. He reports that two rebel gunboats and one ram were in Mobile Bay; that 10,000 rebel troops were below Mobile, on the Shell Road; that the fortifications around Mobile were commenced about a month ago, and are completed, and that the inhabitants are sanguine that Mobile cannot be taken.

He also says that Gen. BRAGG is in command at Tupello, with a force of from forty to fifty thousand men. Gen. BRECKINRIDGE had left with a force of thirty thousand. All the rebel troops were short of clothing and provisions. Bacon was served twice a week to them. They had no coffee and no salt.

The rebels say they intend to retake Corinth.

The rebel impression generally is that a majority of our troops have gone East.

It is the unanimous testimony of our scouts, and of rebel deserters, that no rebel troops, except cavalry, have gone East.

FROM GEN. POPE'S ARMY.

All Quiet at Warrenton—Conduct of the Female Rebels.

WASHINGTON, Friday, July 4.

Accounts from Warrenton state that there is no enemy there, the 200 Rebel cavalry seen on Wednesday having disappeared.

Some of the women threw dishes and other articles from the windows at our forces.

The soldiers at Manassas and Catlett's Station are celebrating Independence Day.

SEVENTY-NINTH REGIMENT HIGHLANDERS.—Rev. JAMES C. WYATT, Chaplain of the Seventy-ninth Regiment, just returned from Port Royal, S. C., will preach this morning at Rev. Dr. MCLEOD'S Church, Twelfth-street, west of Sixth-avenue; services at 10½ o'clock. Chaplain WYATT was in the late battle on James Island, and gives a very interesting account of the engagement. He will return to the regiment in a few days.

NEWS FROM EUROPE.

THE HIBERNIAN OFF CAPE RACE.

Sufficient French Troops to be Sent to Mexico to Force a Way to the Capital.

A French Fleet of Observation to Concentrate in American Waters.

MORE ABOUT MEDIATION.

CAPE RACE, Saturday, July 5.

The steamship Hibernian, from Liverpool 26th, via Londonderry 27th, passed this point this morning.

The steamship Bohemian, from Quebec, arrived at Liverpool on the 24th.

The steamship Persia arrived at Queenstown on the 26th.

Sales of cotton for the week, 150,000 bales. The market was much excited, and prices have advanced 1d. @ 1⅛d. per pound.

Breadstuffs quiet and steady.

Provisions very dull.

Consols, for money, 91⅛@91⅜.

American securities dull, with downward tendency.

It is asserted that NAPOLEON has resolved to send sufficient troops to Mexico to force a way to the Capital against all obstacles.

Admiral GRAVIERE will immediately take command of a strong concentration of French war vessels in the American waters, which concentration, the Patrie says, is justified by what may arise out of the American war and Mexican affairs.

The London Herald urges intervention in American affairs.

Death of Isabella Hinckley Susini.

The brief career of the favorite prima donna, best known amongst us as "Belle HINCKLEY," terminated yesterday morning.

Mme. HINCKLEY SUSINI was a native of Albany, where, while at school, she developed quite early in life great musical talent coupled with such energy of nature and buoyancy of spirits as justified her friends in predicting for her a brilliant public career. Her parents' circumstances were not such as enabled them to give her a thorough musical education, and it was with regret that she, at one time, relinquished the long-cherished plan of studying abroad. She was for several years the leading soprano at one of the largest churches in Albany, and while in that position made many warm and influential friends, who determined to aid her in her laudable desires. She was accordingly tendered a complimentary concert by the people of Albany, which netted such a liberal sum as warranted her in going at once to Italy, where, under the best teachers and masters, she became more finished in style and perfect in execution. The rapidity with which she mastered languages was as remarkable as was her memory, and it was a matter of note, while she was a pupil in Rome, that no task requiring simple effort of memory, was too great for her.

After a successful début in Paris, she came to this country about two years ago. Since that time she has fairly won her way to the respectful affection of the people, and the cordial recognition of the critics. Free from whim, abounding in good nature, ready at a moment's notice, thoroughly conversant with the manners and customs of our people, and mindful of the important truth, that "Americans are not fond of disappointments," she, though not so brilliant as GAZZANIGA, or so impassioned as COLSON, uniting in herself the conscientiousness of LA GRANGE, and the piquancy of PICCOLOMINI, reigned queen of Young America almost from the night of her début.

Some months since she married Signor SUSINI, the distinguished basso; and scarcely a year has passed, during which time she was a bride and a mother, before we are called upon to record her death.

Her public career was brief and brilliant; her domestic life that of a dutiful daughter, a faithful wife, a loving mother.

The President's Call for Troops.

A MEETING AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS., TO RESPOND.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Friday, July 4.

A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held this morning, at the City Hall, to respond to the recent call of the President.

Spirited addresses were made by Mayor BEMIS, GEORGE ASHMUN, Gen. DEVINS of Worcester, M. K. RUM of Missouri, Hon. Geo. WALKER, Judge CHAPMAN and others.

The following resolutions were passed unanimously, and with great enthusiasm, by the three thousand persons present:

Resolved, That the purpose of the President of the United States to crush and speedily end the wicked rebellion by means of an overwhelming force, as indicated in his recent call for additional volunteers, meets the hearty and unhesitating concurrence of all loyal citizens, and that it becomes the duty of Massachusetts to maintain her standing among the foremost States in sustaining the Government and the Constitution, and in her behalf we take the earliest opportunity on this, the nation's birthday, to express by our earnest popular response, not only our confidence in the wisdom and patriotism of the President, but a determination that no question of party differences, nor injurious suspicion concerning the individual personal purposes of ambition or rivalry or shortcoming of any kind of his subordinates, whether in the Cabinet or in the field, shall deter or delay the support which he has a right to expect, and which our whole country pledges us to give.

Resolved, That the recent manifestations in high quarters, both in France and in Great Britain, of a purpose still further to give continuance and encouragement to the rebellion, but too openly reveals a hatred of our Republican institutions, as well as jealousy and fear of the marvelous strength to which they have grown in the prosperity of a united nation, and that we concur in what we are certain is the unanimous sentiment of the loyal people of this country, that "foreign intervention in our affairs is not to be tolerated, and that the cheerful alacrity with which our armies have rallied to suppress a domestic insurrection, will be at once and far surpassed upon the first hostile demonstration."

Arrival of the Cahawba from Pensacola and Key West.

The United States transport steamer Cahawba, Commander J. B. BARKER, arrived yesterday afternoon, having left Pensacola June 25, Key West 30th, and Port Royal July 2, at 7 P. M. The news at the above places was unimportant, everything being quiet.

Arrived at Hilton Head, 2d, at 6 P. M., the United States transports Ben Deford, Cosmopolitan and Delaware, from Stono, S. C. The Cosmopolitan touched at Hilton Head to land a portion of the Seventh New-Hampshire Volunteers.

There arrived at Key West, on 23d, brig John Pierce, NORTON, from Philadelphia, with coal; 24th, schooner D. S. Lineo, MAY, do. do.; 25th, brig Jadge Blaney, COOMBS, do. do.; 26th, brig Pavillion, CANNON, from Gulf Mexico, whaling; 28th, schooner D. C. Hulse, KEMPTON, from Philadelphia, with coal.

PERSONAL.

—In reply to a statement that a party of Congressmen were turned out of a rebel house in the rear of the army of the Potomac, during a thunder-shower, by order of Gen. McClellan, Hon. A. J. Diven has published a card, in which he says: "I was of the party visiting the army in front of Richmond last week. The statement copied from the Tribune is simply false. There was no such occurrence as mentioned, and nothing to justify it. It is in keeping with a story from the same source, that I had a nephew in the Penitentiary here, under sentence from a court-martial. I am not in the habit of noticing what the newspapers say of me, particularly the Tribune. The editor of that paper has a motive for these attacks on me, which I may some day explain. I now only wish to correct the falsehood so far as the army is concerned."

James Hoyt, offered Mrs. McClellan a pew in their church, which she cordially accepted, and she will be numbered among the worshippers at the church during her residence there.

OBITUARY.

—Col. Albert Magilton, of the Fourth Pennsylvania Reserve Regiment, who was among the killed in the battle at Mechanicsville, was a native of Philadelphia. He was educated in the Ringgold Grammar School, Moyamensing, entered the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1842, and on his graduation in 1846 was breveted a Second Lieutenant in the Fourth Artillery. In this capacity he served in the Mexican war with such distinguished gallantry that he won the brevet of First Lieutenant for bravery at Contreras and Cherubusco. Subsequently to the Mexican war he saw long and arduous service in the Indian country, which wearisome and unprofitable duty becoming monotonous, he resigned his commission and returned to Philadelphia to reside in 1857. Here the civil war found him in 1861, and he was elected Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fourth Reserve Regiment, (Thirty-third Pennsylvania Infantry,) of which regiment he became Colonel, upon the resignation of Col. William B. Mann. Col. Magilton had done much to bring his regiment into an efficient condition, and was esteemed as an accomplished and skilful soldier. His loss will be severely felt.

—Col. ROBERTS, of the First Michigan regiment, who fell in the battle of Mechanicsville, fought in the battle of Bull Run as Captain of Company A, in Col. WILCOX'S regiment. Capt. ROBERTS formed his company after the panic, and marched in perfect order from the field, and his was the only company on that fatal day that distinguished itself by an orderly retreat. His regiment was completely cut up, however, and its reorganization was necessary. He accordingly returned to Michigan, called for volunteers, and soon supplied the decimated ranks with fresh recruits. He was elected Colonel for his meritorious conduct, and returned to the Potomac. Col. ROBERTS leaves a wife but no children.

Ladies' Home for Sick and Wounded Soldiers—Reply to "Visitor."

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In most of the daily papers of Monday, yours included, an article appeared, over the signature of "Visitor," containing so many mis-statements, and calculated to do such manifest injustice, that I feel a few words in reply are demanded.

In the first place, "Visitor's" gratitude to the Giver of all Good, for the appropriation of this asylum to this cause, by the Mayor and Common Council, happens to be all wrong. The Mayor and Common Council have never done anything of the kind, but the Mayor and Common Council did appropriate this building to the Northeastern Dispensary for a limited term, to enable it to commence its lasting work of a charity by which full two thousand poor, sick and wounded, (a large portion of which are soldiers,) will be freely treated and supplied with medicines during the present year. The managers of the Dispensary, twenty-five highly respectable citizens, of their own volition, and without the consent of the Mayor and Common Council, donated to these ladies all the room they then desired for wounded soldiers, not the sick, for the neighborhood, studded with other institutions, containing full five thousand children, were not prepared for a sick hospital in their midst, particularly during the hot Summer season. Soon after this these ladies complained for the want of more room, and a Committee from the Board of Councilmen was appointed to investigate the matter. This Committee, with all the facts before it, reported that no action on the part of the Common Council was necessary in the premises; but as one member of the Committee did not sign the report for the reason that he thought this Dispensary could or should give up the kitchen for the purpose of obtaining more hot water for the hospital, the managers of the Dispensary at once removed their janitor and his family entirely out of the building, and gave up all his apartments to them. They then expressed themselves entirely satisfied. But now, through "Visitor," their complaints are again renewed, and nothing short of drawing out the last nail upon which a Dispensary hat can be hung will satisfy them.

The Dispensary now occupies less than half the room occupied by most of the other Dispensaries in this City, for the prosecution of its business. For all its treatment rooms it has but a reception-room, 16 feet square, and two little slip rooms five feet wide—almost disgracefully reduced to this to please these ladies. It occupies a room 12 feet by 16 for transacting its business and for the meetings of the Board of Managers, with an infant's bath and closet attached to it. Beside this is another room of the same size, reserved for the use of the Medical Staff of the Dispensary, numbering 35 eminent surgeons and physicians, who are in daily and constant attendance. The "Home," as it is called, or hospital, has now in its keeping about 140 sick and wounded soldiers, about one-half of which are nearly well, and enjoy the pleasures of canvass tents on the opposite side of the avenue Lexington, corner of Fifty-first-street. The building in controversy is seventy-eight feet long by sixty-four feet wide, with ten feet halls, and three stories high. It is now about one-half filled with the sick and wounded. If "Visitor" will inquire, he or she will find just this difference between the Dispensary and the "Home"—the former is a responsible, legally constituted body of men, who pay from their own pockets the entire expense of their charity, and can sue and be sued. The latter is a small number of good women, mostly married, who are moved by charity in their acts, but have no legal organization, and are accountable to no one. They no doubt wisely expend what is given to them, and there stop.

Why, the demand for accommodations for this small number of afflicted soldiers should claim the attention it has received without any legal or responsible head, and the appeals made to all the humane of our city of a million, is more than the unsophisticated can explain. It is shrewdly suspected, however, that somebody wants comfortable quarters here long after the soldiers are cured and sent away, as we hope, rejoicing. It should be borne in mind that for the purposes of a dispensary, a somewhat peculiar building is required, a very large portion of those who seek its aid, are in that decrepid state that they cannot get up or down stairs without much suffering, hence an ordinary dwelling house is not at all fitted for this purpose. VINDEX.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

AN ALLEGED MURDER IN GOERCK-STREET.—A man named PATRICK MCGINNIS, whose residence was at No. 73 Goerck-street, was severely injured at a late hour on Friday night. He was immediately taken by the Thirteenth Precinct Police to Bellevue Hospital, where he died yesterday. At the time the injured man was found by the Police Officers, it was supposed that he had received his injuries by reason of having fallen against an iron railing, and one person, who pretended that he saw the accident, so informed the Police. The case was, therefore, reported as a case of accident. Soon after the man died, however, three parties appeared at the Station-house of the Thirteenth Precinct, and stated that they were ready to testify that the case was one of murder. They said they saw the party who inflicted the wounds; that the injuries were produced by repeated blows upon the unfortunate's head with a cane. A post-mortem examination developed the fact that there were two severe wounds upon each side of the head, near the temples; and that the skull was fractured in several places. Late yesterday afternoon, Coroner COLLIN proceeded to the Dead-house of Bellevue Hospital, for the purpose of holding an inquest upon the body, but up to a late hour last evening no report of it was received, and the presumption is that the investigation was adjourned, in order to obtain further testimony.

A MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT ON THE HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD.—At 8:20 o'clock yesterday, a serious accident occurred on the Hudson River Railroad, whereby two men lost their lives. It appears that quite a number of the employes of the Astor House, in company with several men who are connected with the American Express Company, took the 8 o'clock train from Chambers-street, for Fort Washington, near which place they proposed to spend the day in having a clam-bake. The cars stopped at the Fort Washington Station, where the party alighted. Two of the men—whose names could not be ascertained—belonging to the Astor House, had just stepped off upon the down-track, when the down express train struck them, and they were killed almost instantly. Sergeant WILSON soon after took the bodies in charge, and conveyed them to the Railroad Depôt at Thirty-first-street, where Coroner RANNEY will hold an inquest. No blame is attached to the Company, so far as we have learned.

LATER.—The names of the persons who were killed on the Hudson River Railroad are HENRY MURPHY and JOHN HOGAN. They were waiters at the Astor House, and had been employed there for many years. They were regarded by Mr. STETSON as very faithful and trustworthy agents.

SISTERS OF MERCY GOING TO NORTH CAROLINA TO TAKE CHARGE OF SICK AND WOUNDED SOLDIERS.—To-morrow, (Monday, July 7,) ten Sisters of Mercy will leave the Convent of Mercy, corner of Houston and Mulberry streets, for Gen. BURNSIDE'S department. These good Sisters have, at the request of Gen. FOSTER, volunteered to take charge of the Military Hospital at Beaufort, N. C. This will afford an excellent opportunity to all who desire to contribute to the comfort of sick and wounded soldiers, of supplying them with such hospital necessaries and such articles of nutrition as their generosity and patriotism may prompt them to send. We hope many will avail themselves of the opportunity, and send what they can at once to the Convent of Mercy, corner of Houston and Mulberry streets.

CHANGES AMONG THE POLICE.—Appointments.—Charles P. Wiggins, to the Third Precinct; James L. Metcalf and Robert Brown, to the Fifth; John S. Hewson, Joseph H. Boyle and Samuel W. Webb, to the Eighth; Charles H. Stromberg and Benjamin J. Belden, to the Tenth; James Conley, to the Nineteenth, and Samuel Soule, to the Twenty-ninth. Resignations.—Samuel W. Burgess, of the First Precinct; Charles G. Treshman, of the Tenth; Alexander B. Marston, of the Eleventh; John N. Barry, of the Fourteenth; Frank B. Dobson, of the Twenty-ninth, and Sergt. Wm. H. Van Brunt, of the Forty-first.

THE WHITE-STREET RECRUITING OFFICE—A MISTAKE CORRECTED.—The United States Mustering Office, No. 79 White-street, is open daily. The error in the TIMES of yesterday arose from the fact that the Disbursing Department of the office has been closed for the last few days, and will not be opened until Tuesday, as they have to close up their monthly and quarterly accounts. Capt. LARNED, the United States Mustering Officer, is only too glad to aid, in every possible way, the mustering into the service of all who apply.

MORE COUNTERFEITS ON THE WEEDSPORT BANK.—A large number of well-executed counterfeit $5 bills on the Weedsport Bank, of Cayuga County, this State, were put into circulation in this City and Brooklyn, yesterday and day before. In addition to the arrests made by the Detectives on Thursday night, for the offence of passing them, there were several parties taken into custody yesterday, charged with the same crime. The spurious bills are so well executed that some of the best judges in New-York have been deceived by them.

FUNERAL OF MIDSHIPMAN BRADLEY.—The funeral of Midshipman JOHN B. BRADLEY, United States Navy, who was killed in the naval engagement below New-Orleans, took place, yesterday, in the chapel of the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn. Midshipman BRADLEY was only eighteen years of age at the time of his death, and was acting as aid-de-camp to the Commander of the United States steamship Richmond. He is represented to have been a young man of great bravery and universally loved and esteemed by his associates. His remains were interred in the cemetery connected with the Naval Hospital.

A WOUNDED SOLDIER RUN OVER AND SERIOUSLY INJURED.—WILLIAM BLACK, a wounded soldier, whose residence is at No. 126 Hanson-avenue, Brooklyn, was knocked down and run over yesterday afternoon, by a runaway horse and truck belonging to Mr. C. F. GOODWIN, of No. 205 Cherry-street. BLACK was so seriously injured that no hopes are entertained of his recovery. Officer MCGUIRE, of the Sixth Precinct, picked him up, and conveyed him to the New-York Hospital.

FATAL FALL FROM A ROOF.—About 12 o'clock last night, a stage-driver named ANDREW DOUGLAS, aged 25 years, fell from the roof of the four-story house on the northwest corner of Fortieth-skeet and Fourth-avenue, to the sidewalk, and was instantly killed. Officer J. MCCARTY conveyed the body to the Dead-house of Bellevue Hospital, where Coroner RANNEY held an inquest upon the body. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

ROBBED IN A STAGE.—Miss MCCUNN, daughter of Judge MCCUNN, was robbed on Saturday last by a woman, in a Seventh-avenue stage in Greenwich-avenue, of a small jewelry box, containing one set of diamond ear-rings, one gold watch set with diamonds, and a plain gold watch. The whole was worth over $1,200. The child was on her way to the Judge's office at the time she was robbed.

FIRE IN A BOARDING-HOUSE.—Between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday morning, an old mansion, at present occupied as a boarding-house by MRS. BARNEY, situated at the foot of Fifty-fourth-street, took fire, and before the flames could be extinguished, it was damaged to the amount of $1,200. It was insured in the Pacific Insurance Company. The fire began upon the roof, and was caused by fireworks.

THE CUBAN CADETS.—Yesterday evening, by invitation of the McClellan Greys, the Cuban Cadets, from New-Hamburgh, went through their drill at the armory of the Second Regiment New-York State Militia, corner of Seventh-street and Hall Place. Certainly they have arrived at great proficiency, and fully deserved the applause showered upon them last night by a large concourse of ladies and gentlemen.

SUDDEN DEATH IN A FERRY-HOUSE.—A Mrs. ADAMS, whose residence was in Brooklyn, died very suddenly at the Staten Island Ferry-house, about 1½ o'clock yesterday afternoon. Apoplexy is supposed to be the cause.

ARREST OF A SUPPOSED INCENDIARY.—The Thirteenth Precinct Police yesterday arrested a German named WEBER, who is charged with setting fire to his own premises on Friday night, at No. 183 Clinton-street. The Fire Marshal has the case under investigation.

LAW REPORTS.

Important to Sugar Dealers.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—JULY 5.

Before Judge Smalley.

The United States vs. 1,406 Boxes of Sugar marked L. V. H. & Co.—This was an action brought to forfeit the sugar for alleged violation of the revenue laws. The sugar was shipped in Havana by Sama Sotolongo & Co., consigned to L. Van Horn & Co., by the ship Kerelan, and arrived here Dec. 23, 1861. In the invoice all the sugars except 14 boxes were described as Quebrado sugars. The 14 boxes were described as Cucuruchos. Van Horn & Co., the claimants, entered the sugars, using this invoice; and in the entry they described all the sugars as raw sugars, and paid duty thereon at the rate of two cents a pound. By the then existing tariff of Aug. 5, 1861, sec. 1, a duty was imposed "On raw sugar, commonly called Muscovado or brown sugars, and on sugars not advanced above No. 12 Dutch standard by claying, boiling, clarifying or other processes, two cents a pound; and on white and clayed sugar, when advanced beyond the raw state above No. 12 Dutch standard by clarifying or other processes, and not yet refined, 2½ cents a pound."

The sugars were examined at the Custom-house, and on examination it was reported to the Collector that all of them except the fourteen boxes were advanced by boiling, clarifying, or other processes, above No. 12, Dutch standard. The sugars were accordingly seized, and the information in this case filed against them under the 67th section of the act of 1799, and the 4th section of the act of 1830. The counts, under the act of 1799, alleged the forfeiture of the goods by reason of false description in the entry, and the counts under the act of 1830 alleged that the invoice was made up with intent to evade the payment of duties, by calling the sugar Quebrado sugar when it was not such.

The testimony for the Government, given mainly by sugar refiners, tended to show that there were four lots of the sugars, and that three of them, amounting to about 1,100 boxes, were partially refined, and belonged to the three highest of the four grades into which sugars are distinguished. That the term Quebrado is applied to sugars between the grades of No. 10 and Nos. 12 or 14, Dutch standard, and that all these sugars were above No. 12, except the 14 boxes. It also appeared that these sugars were made by what is known as the De Rosne process, by which the sugar is clarified as it is made from the cane, and that the mode was similar to that of refining sugars here.

Merchants were called to testify for the claimants, and their testimony tended to show that in Cuba, as well as in New-York, all sugars were known as raw sugars, except sugars manufactured from sugar, and that no sugars, known in commerce as refined sugars, were ever imported from Cuba; and that the term Quebrado applied to all grades of sugar from No. 10 to No. 20, Dutch standard, and that none of these sugars were above No. 20.

The jury yesterday morning brought in a sealed verdict for the claimants, releasing the goods.

For the United States, Messrs. Webster & Craig; for the claimants, Mr. Evarts.

The Construction of a Will—The Word "Child" taken to Mean "Grandchild."

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Ingraham, Clerke and Leonard.

Henry M. Prowett vs. Washington Rodman, et al.—This was an action to determine the heirship to certain real estate, under a devise from Thomas Mackaness. The testator died in 1807, leaving three daughters—Elizabeth, then Mrs. Harvey; Mary, then Mrs. Prowett, and Margaret, afterward Mrs. Ludlow. Elizabeth died, leaving two children—Mary, afterward Mrs. Rodman, and one of the defendants in this action, and Thomas M. Harvey. Mary Mackaness outlived all her children, and died in 1837, leaving grandchildren. Margaret died, leaving one child—Elizabeth Christie, one of the defendants. By the second article of this will, the testator devised in trust to his daughter Mary certain real estate situate in Barclay-street, in this City. In the same article are also these words: "And in case my daughter, Mary Prowett, shall leave a child living at the time of her death, then I give and devise in trust, for her use and benefit during her natural life, and to her child or children after her decease; to my daughter Elizabeth Harvey, and my daughter Margaret Thornton Mackaness, their heirs and assigns forever, in equal parts to be divided." One of the defendants, as heir of Mary Rodman, claims one-half of the estate, as the sole surviving child of Elizabeth Harvey; and Elizabeth Christie claims the other half, as the sole surviving child of the testator's daughter Margaret.

The only question which arose on the argument of the case (which was stated in the TIMES of March 24,) was whether the words "child or children," as used in the will, did not mean and were not meant to include grandchildren as well as children.

The plaintiffs claimed as grandchildren of Mary Prowett, contending that they were intended to be benefited by the devise equally with the children.

The defendants, as children of the other daughters, claimed that the intention of the testator was to limit the devise to the "children" only of his daughters.

The Court, at Special Term, held that the apparent intention of the testator was to include the grandchildren, and gave judgment for the plaintiffs.

This Court have affirmed that decision.

Thomas H. Rodman for appellants; Marshal S. Bidwell for respondents.

Decisions.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Monell.

Winterhoff, &c., vs. Siegert, &c.—Motion denied without costs.

Potter vs. Lubivan.—Motion denied with $7 costs, without prejudice to review the motion to vacate on affidavits.

Luling vs. O'Neal.—Motion denied; $10 costs.

SATURDAY, July 5—P. M.

The Stock market, after the holiday adjournment, and under less discouraging accounts from the army on James River, was firmer this forenoon, and the demand strong for the Government Securities, the Railway Mortgages and most of the Railroad Shares, at the improvement. After the first orders were filled on the first call of Stocks, the market was partially weaker, most of the Stocks being offered at the prices current on the printed sales. But later in the day the Street prices were again upward, and the market up to 2½ o'clock, quite firm. At that time the Brokers informally assembled in their Board Room, to compare quotations and execute orders, when the market was again strong. On still later dispatches from Gen. MCCLELLAN, New-York Central was done as high as 91 ₱ cent., a rise altogether of 3½ ₱ cent. from the lowest sales of Thursday. The recovery on the Erics and Westerns, 2@2½ ₱ cent. At a later hour, on the Street, the prices were about as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| N. Y. Central | 90⅜ | Mich. Southern | 25 |
| Erie | 35¼ | Mich. Guaranteed | 55¼ |
| Erie Preferred | 62 | Pacific | 113¾ |

| Galena | 69¼ | U. S. Custom Notes | 105 |
| Mich. Central | 59¾ | Gold | 109⅜ |

The following were the bids, to-day, for the City Bank Stocks; the market dull, and most descriptions neglected:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Manhattan | 123 | State of New-York | 90 |
| Merchants' | 100 | Pacific | 120 |
| Mechanics' | 102⅜ | Chatham | 82½ |
| America | 107 | Bk. of the Republic | 90½ |
| National | 97 | | |

The Railway Mortgages reecovered from 1 to 3 ₱ cent. from the panic sales of Thursday, and a good demand was shown on nearly all the established issues.

The Cleveland Herald of the 3d inst., referring to the Wheat harvest of the Northwest, says:

"From Central and Southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, the accounts of the Wheat harvest are all that could be desired. The crop is excellent in quantity and quality, and in the vicinity of the Ohio River it has been secured in good order. No injury from insect or rust is complained of. Further North the Wheat promises well.

Last year we shipped enormous quantities of Breadstuffs to the Old World, and it is fortunate for the West that the demand from Europe continues. We shall soon have another vast grain crop to market, and it is now beginning to be tolerably clear that the English crops will be again poor. Under the assurance that the American granaries will be unfailing, the English take no further thought about the odd corners of the earth where they used to be in the habit of gathering up their supplies. The rebel States, until the war, were heavy consumers of Western produce, and must ere long become so again. The great army in the field must also be fed, and grain-growers may expect fair prices for their big crops of 1862."

SALE JUNCTION RAILROAD COMPANY'S BONDS.—The Junction Railroad Company invites proposals, in writing, for the purchase of the whole or any part of five hundred thousand dollars First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Coupon Bonds.

The mortgage is made to Alexander Henry, Esq., Trustee, and will be due July 1, 1882. It is secured upon the entire railroad and property of the Company lying on the west side of Schuylkill, between Belmont and Gray's Ferry. Its terms provide for a sinking fund of fifteen thousand dollars per year, to be invested in these Bonds, or in the First Mortgage Bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, in the loans of the United States, or of the State of Pennsylvania, at the discretion of this Board of Directors.

The Bonds are for one thousand dollars each. Their payment is guaranteed by endorsement of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, on the back of each bond in the following words, viz.:

"Know all men by these presents, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and each of them, for a valuable consideration, to them paid by the Junction Railroad Company, do hereby (in pursuance of the power and authority conferred by two Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved respectively on the twenty-third day of March, A. D., 1861, and the eleventh day of April, A. D., 1862, and of every other lawful power and authority in them vested,) jointly and severally guarantee to the lawful holder of the within Bond the punctual payment of the principal and interest thereof, when and as the same shall become due and payable according to the terms of said Bond or of the terms and covenants of the indenture of mortgage therein mentioned and given to secure the same.

In witness whereof, said Companies have hereunto affixed their common or corporate seals respectively, duly attested, and have caused the signatures of their Presidents respectively to be hereunto written this second day of June, Anno Domini, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, (1862.")

Payment for the Bonds will be required as follows:

The first instalment of ten per cent. will be payable on the first day of August, and ten per cent. additional on the first of each succeeding month until the whole amount is paid.

Proposals will be addressed to CHAS. E. SMITH, Treasurer, No. 227 South 4th-st., until Monday, July 21.

Each proposal will state the total number or amount of the bonds wanted, and the price offered per bond of one thousand dollars.

The Company reserves to itself the right to accept or reject the whole or any part of any proposition received.

Successful bidders will be notified of the acceptance of their proposals within one week from the opening of the bids. JOSEPH LESLEY, Secretary, Junction Railroad Company.

CORPORATION LOAN OF $500,000 FOR THE RELIEF OF FAMILIES OF VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.—The Common Council of the City of New-York having, by an ordinance approved by the Mayor, on the 18th of June, instant, authorized the borrowing, upon the credit of the Corporation, the further sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, to be applied in "Aiding to support the families of the soldiers from this City, who are engaged in defending the integrity of the National Union," a book for subscriptions to said loan will be opened at the Comptroller's Office, on SATURDAY, June 28, and continue open until MONDAY, July 7, unless the whole amount shall be sooner taken.

The subscribers to said loan will be required to pay the amount of their subscriptions to the City Chamberlain, at the Broadway Bank, within three days after the date thereof, and on presenting the Chamberlain's receipts for such payments to the Comptroller, they will be entitled to receive an equal amount of Bonds, known as "Volunteer's Family Aid Bonds, No. 3," of the Corporation of the City of New-York.

The said Bonds will be issued in sums to suit—not less than One Hundred Dollars—and will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July, and the principal will be payable on the first day of July, 1865. They will also be transferable, at the pleasure of the holders, on books kept in the Comptroller's Office.

The Coal must be of the best quality of white ash, furnace and stove sizes, in good order, two thousand two hundred and forty (2,240) pounds to the ton, and must be delivered in the bins at the several school buildings. The proposals must state the mines from which it is proposed to supply the Coal, and the Coal to be furnished from the mines so named, if accepted, and must state the price per ton of two thousand two hundred and forty pounds, (2,240 pounds.)

The Coal will be inspected and weighed by and delivered under the supervision of the Inspector of Fuel of the Board of Education. Said Coal to be delivered at the schools, when ordered, as follows; two-thirds of the quantity from the 25th day of July to the 1st day of October next, and the remainder as required by the Committee on Supplies. The contract for supplying said Coal to be binding until the 25th day of May, 1863. Sureties for the faithful performance of the contract will be required, and each proposal must be accompanied with the signatures of the proposed sureties.

No compensation will be allowed for delivering said Coal at any of the Schools, nor for putting the same in the yards, cellars, vaults or bins of said Schools.

Proposals must be directed to the "Committee on Supplies of the Board of Education," and should be indorsed "Proposals for Coal."

The Committee reserve the right to reject any or all of the proposals offered; and the contracts to be entered into are to be subject to the approval of the Board of Education.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE

shortest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 2 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury or change of diet or hindrance from business. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his special experience in this most neglected branch of medical science he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhea or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Gleet or Gonorrhea of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., the only place.

---

DR. COBBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st. to his present very convenient suite of offices at No. 20 Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place, where he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present specialty, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, impotency, seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

---

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 160th edition of the valuable book, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York; or can be sent by mail, free of postage, to any part of the United States and Canada, by inclosing $1, and addressing Box No. 1,224 New-York City. For sale by H. RICHARDSON, at No. 1 Vesey-st., (Astor House,) and No. 18 Ann-st.; FEDERHEN & CO., 13 Court-st., Boston.

---

AN ACT OF GRATITUDE.—20,000 COPIES of a medical book for gratuitous circulation, by a sufferer, who has been effectually cured of nervous debility, loss of memory and dimness of sight, resulting from early errors, by following the instruction given in a medical work, considers it his duty, in gratitude to the author, and for the benefit of consumptives and nervous sufferers, to publish the means used. He will, therefore, send free, to any address, on receipt of two 3-cent stamps, a copy of the work, containing every information required. Address Box No. 579 Post-office, Albany, N. Y.

---

FOUND AT LAST.—THE ONLY SAFE, CERtain and sure remedy for either single or married ladies in regulating and removing all obstructions. Dr. POWERS' French Periodical Drops. Therefore every lady should use them. Designed expressly for obstinate cases which all other remedies of the kind have failed to cure. Office No. 12 Laight-st.

---

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. The French Preventive, $4 per dozen. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. You who have contracted that soul and body-destroying vice, Secret Habits, Dr. HUNTER'S Red Drop cures the worst cases. Price $1, with a book.

---

NO CURE NO PAY.—S. R. KING, M. D., CURES rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, dropsy, and all chronic diseases, with new chemical and electrical application, and mercury removed from the system, &c. Office, No. 367 Broome-st., New-York.

---

SOMETHING FOR LADIES.—DR. COX'S Japan Secret, the great periodical remedy for the immediate removal of monthly obstructions. Office No. 36 Leroy-st., near Bleecker. Ladies can consult Dr. COX confidentially. Hours from 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.

---

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. SWARD'S Great Benefactor. The great periodical remedy, infallible for the immediate removal of monthly obstructions. Office, No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, where Dr. WARD can be consulted confidentially, day or evening.

---

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without diet or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is prone to absorb, unless this remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient, who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.
